ROCK CONTRACT GIVES TROUBLE

OPPOSITION RAISED TO THE AMOUNT

City Council Cuts Down Supply to Be Guaranteed.

At the city council last evening the question of the rock supply for the city came up again. This was on the report of the streets, bridges and sewers committee. The offer of H. W. E. Cannan to supply the rock in the city was recommended to be accepted at $1.55 a yard. The right to erect bunkers on the city wharf was advised, and the offer to purchase the city crusher at $4,250 was also recommended.

This item of the committee's report provoked quite a discussion before it was passed, after recommending that the contract be made for 50,000 yards instead of 200,000 yards as originally suggested.

When the report of the streets, bridges and sewers committee was received, Ald. Henderson proposed the question as to what the amount of the contract was.

His worship said he understood that it was 200,000 yards.

Ald. Stewart said he was prepared to enter into a contract for a large amount of rock. He was not prepared to support a proposition to enter into a contract for 200,000 or 250,000 yards at $1.55 a yard. This amounted to $300,000. He doubted whether the citizens understood that a contract for such an amount was to be let.

Ald. Turner said the difficulty was that the contractors wanted to be assured of having a considerable portion taken before putting in a plant. The contractor had said he would have to put in a plant costing $30,000 to start with.

Ald. Stewart did not believe it would cost such a sum as $30,000 to begin work. He believed that if other contractors knew that any such amount was to have been contracted for they would have put in at a much lower figure.

Ald. Turner said he did not care how little was contracted for. If the contractors would agree to supply 100,000 yards, he would be satisfied. The city should do something to get rock, however.

Ald. Humber said Loney Brook, a few months ago, agreed to supply 40,000 yards at $1.55 a yard. Why should 100,000 yards be contracted for? Ald. Henderson proposed to make the contract for 50,000 yards.

Ald. Turner said this was ridiculous, the firm would not agree to it. This was simply blocking the whole business.

Ald. Ross did not know why the city did not get in and do its own crushing. The city's crusher was not to be taken over. If it was not to be paid for before any rock was supplied he would not favor it.

Ald. Henderson pointed out that the city had an offer of rock on the wharf at $1.50 a yard. That allowed 20 cents for hauling, so that the city could not be held up very much.

Ald. Henderson's amendment to fix the amount of the contract at 50,000 yards was carried.

The report as so amended was adopted.

The committee's report also recommended the placing of drinking fountains, eight of which have arrived, at the following locations: Beacon Hill Park, North Park, Four Bay, James Bay Causeway, Fountain (Douglas street), corner of Government and Yates streets, corner of Port and Government streets, and at the corner of Store and Cormorant streets.

The report also recommends that a sewer be constructed on Front street from Langford street south, a distance of 200 feet at an estimated cost of $150, and that the wooden sidewalk now being taken up on Fernwood road be replaced on Denman street, between Clark street and on Clark street, west side, from Pembroke street northerly.

AEROPLANES MET WITH ACCIDENTS

Both Are French Machines and Will Make Another Attempt to Swim-Channel.

Calais, France, July 27.—Two aeroplanes met with minor accidents today while attempting to start for a flight across the English channel.

Hubert Latham's machine was the first to meet with a mishap, being slightly damaged by striking the ground during a preliminary trial flight.

Count de Lambert's aeroplane met a similar fate. The count started toward the water, intending to make a dash for the Dover cliffs, but just reaching the shore, the aeroplane dipped and was wrecked. The machine was not badly damaged, but it will take several hours to make necessary repairs.

Latham announced his intention to make another attempt later in the day, but Lambert's mechanicians said that too much time would be taken up in repairing the count's aeroplane to make it possible for him to start on a second flight to-day. Latham will probably set out again early to-morrow if the weather permits.

SUNDAY CLOSING BY-LAW ALTERED

AMENDED TO COMPLY WITH STATUTES

Attempt Made to Make Civic Measure Capable of Enforcing.

At the meeting of the city council last evening a recommendation was received from the city barrister that an appeal be taken from the decision of Mr. Justice Irving on the Sunday Closing By-Law. The decision of the Supreme court judge was in effect that the by-law was not good, and that licenses would have to be issued to cover every day of the week. An appeal is now recommended.

The by-law has been amended also, the amendment being passed at last night's council meeting.

The new by-law, which is supposed to overcome the objection met with in the court, is recommended by the city barrister and stipulates that all licenses issued shall be for all days except upon any day the parliament of Canada, by statute operative in the province of British Columbia, has declared it not to be lawful to carry on any such business.

The amending measure was introduced by Ald. Raymond, who did not pretend to know what was meant, but who introduced it as framed by the barrister.

It is explained, however, that in this form the city will not be lying in the face of any statute, but will be conforming to the Lord's Day Act in all particulars.

Ald. Stewart moved that the by-law be laid on the table. He could not see the sense in passing this measure, but who introduced it as framed by the barrister.

Ald. McKenna wanted the matter decided one way or the other.

The motion to lay it over was lost.

The by-law passed its first and second readings and was committed.

In committee Ald. Stewart said that as he understood the city barrister he did not feel very sure about this. As he understood it, the provincial Attorney-General had to give his permission to proceed under this. This was but "whipping the devil round a stump."

Ald. Stewart moved that the committee rise. There were two members of the board absent, Ald. Turner and Ald. Humber, and he thought they should be heard.

Ald. Ross agreed with this.

The amendment was lost.

The by-law passed committee and was reported.

The by-law passed its third reading.

HOW "BRAINSTORM" MAN MADE HIS REPORT

It Was Not on a Personal Examination of Thaw, But From Lawyer's Statement.

(Times Leased Wire.)

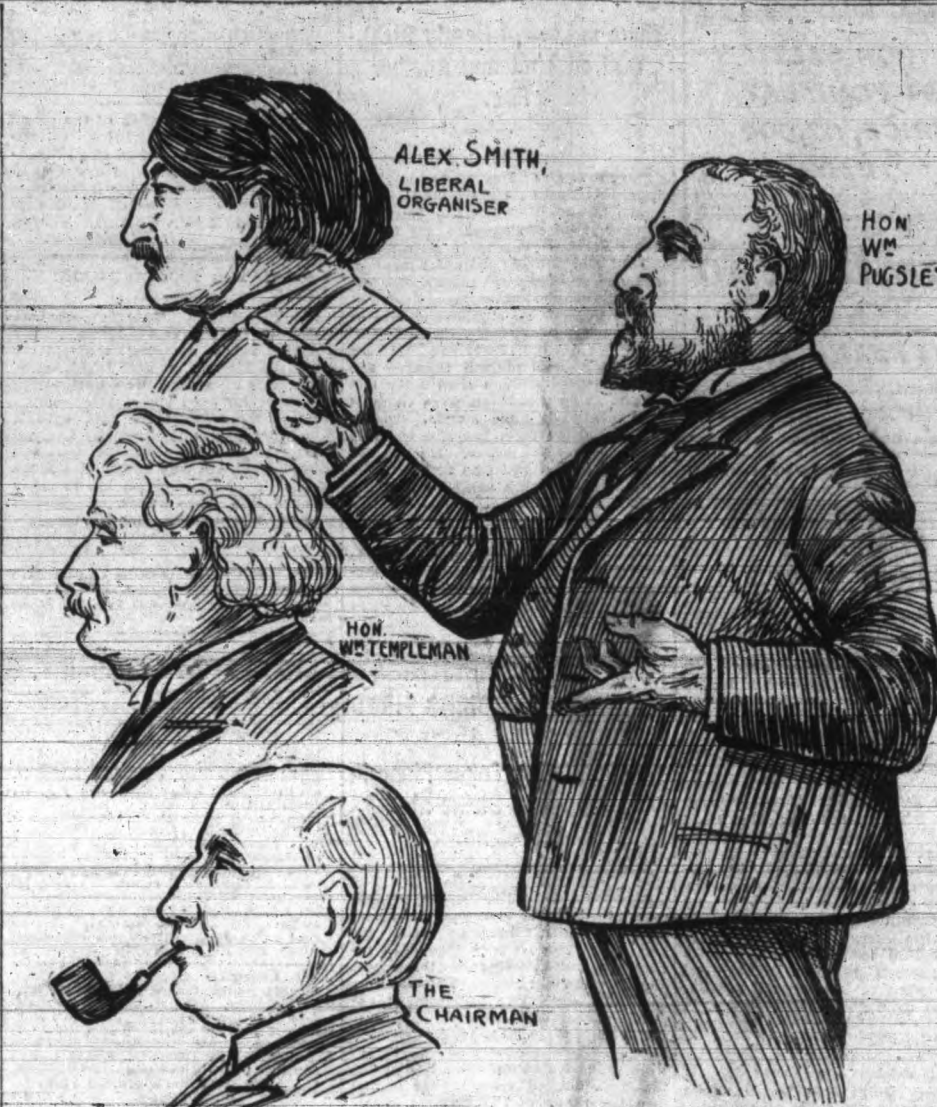

White Plains, N. Y., July 27.—Picking many flaws in the testimony of Dr. Evans, as to the sanity of Harry Thaw, District Attorney Jerome to-day made an unsuccessful attempt to force the physician to state that he did not believe Thaw to be sane now.

Evans admitted that he was confused on many points, but Jerome was unable to shake his belief that Thaw is now sane.

Jerome first made a fight for, and had admitted into court, a report once made by Evans to Attorney Hartidge. Thaw's counsel, in which the alienist said that Thaw was subject to "brainstorms" and was insane. Evans admitted that his report on Thaw's sanity at that time was the result of a report made to him by Attorney Hartidge, and not of personal examination of Thaw.

NEW SASH AND DOOR FACTORY

CITY COUNCIL WILL GRANT A PERMIT

Works Proposed Are to Be Located on Douglas Street.

It is proposed to erect a new planing mill in the city with which will be joined the present furniture and show case works of the Woodmakers, Ltd. If the plans are carried out the works of the Woodworkers, Ltd., controlled by A. C. Burdick, will be removed from Johnson street to Douglas street beyond the fountain.

J. T. Billings, of the Sidney saw mill, is uniting with Mr. Burdick in the undertaking and there will be added to the lines now carried on by Woodworkers, Ltd., that of a planing mill.

Mr. Billings waited upon the city council last evening before the regular session opened, and presented his application for a permit. W. W. Northcott, building inspector, had refused a permit until the matter was referred to the council in view of the fact that the proposed site was to be constructed as residential property. The site is directly opposite Mr. Carleton's house, being lot 19 block 5.

It was explained at the factory at the start they would employ from 20 to 40 men. It would be devoted to the manufacture of articles turned out from a sash and door factory, and also would be devoted to furniture manufacturing. It would not be an unsightly building. Care would be taken to make it immune from fire. It would be covered with metal. The engine and boiler would be 150 feet back from the main building. The factory would have 175 feet frontage on Douglas street and would extend back 50 feet. The object was to be on the Y. & N. railway at the rear. If they were not given permission to locate on this site they would build at Sidney.

Ald. Turner moved that the permit be granted. This was a legitimate industry and he thought there should be no objection to it.

Ald. McKenna wanted to know if it would not be possible to have the works built back 20 feet from the street.

Mr. Billings said they would, if possible, but the company wanted to get sufficient room in the rear of this to pile the lumber.

Ald. Humber said he knew that there was not a majority of the property owners in the vicinity to support this. Unless the majority of the residents favored it he would not support this.

Ald. Raymond said there was no use of talking that way. This was on a railway and was one of the sites that was suitable for a factory. He thought it was a chance to get an industry here.

Ald. Bishop favored bringing this industry in.

SEDITION IN INDIA SPREADS

THREATENED BOYCOTT OF BRITISH GOODS

(Times Leased Wire.)

London, July 27.—Big British business interests are in a panic to-day over the threatened boycott of English goods in India, even more than they are over the Anti-British demonstration planned throughout the country August 7th.

If the boycott could be made permanently effective England might still be able to hold India, but it is doubtful if it would be worth holding. The country has wonderful resources of its own, and enterprising German, French, and Chinese firms are keen to break the English monopoly of trade there.

Native professors of the leading Indian colleges are publicly advocating the anti-British movement and are urging the people to join the boycott. Ajit Singh, deported at the same time as the famous disturber Lala Lajpat Rai, and subsequently allowed to return, and Arabind Chatterjee, another widely known anti-English agitator, are going through the country preaching passive but stubborn resistance to British authority.

Sedition continues to spread. While the India office in London was at first disinclined to take the situation seriously, the veiled threat by Sir Norman Baker, who recently told the Bengal council that if the Indians did not co-operate with the government there would still be a solution, but neither a peaceful nor a peaceful one, has shown the government officials that Englishmen on the ground do not regard it lightly.

KILLED PLAYMATE WHO WON THE GAME

Ten-year-old Los Angeles Boy Struck Smaller Boy With Mallet.

(Times Leased Wire.)

Los Angeles, Cal., July 27.—Angered because his 8-year-old opponent was beating him at a croquet game, Jesse Kingley, 10 years of age, struck Levitt Irbin on the head with a mallet yesterday afternoon, fracturing the little fellow's skull. Irbin died shortly before noon to-day at a hospital following a surgical operation.

The grief-stricken parents of the little victim announced that they would take no steps toward prosecuting the Kingley boy.

ALIVE TO INTERESTS OF PORT OF VICTORIA

Hon. Wm. Pugsley, at Liberal Smoker, Speaks of Future of Harbor—Esquimalt as Naval Base—Island Railway Connection.

What was undoubtedly one of the most successful of the many Liberal smokers held in Victoria was that of last night in Institute hall. It was got up hurriedly in order to tender a welcome to the Minister of Public Works and give an opportunity to the rank and file of the party to meet him, but it was, perhaps, all the more successful because of its impromptu nature. The hall was filled and the audience was animated throughout with the spirit of loyalty to their leader and his two lieutenants who were present.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley carried the meeting by storm, and he will take back to the veteran chief of the party a reassurance of the devotion of this city and province to Liberal principles, despite temporary conditions which exercised an influence on the last election. He will take, too, in addition to a sense of how well the Liberals of Victoria receive any of Sir Wilfrid's ministers an appreciation from personal observation of the high esteem in which the Minister of Inland Revenue is held by his fellow-citizens.

Dr. Pugsley's speech was characterized by the vigor and optimism and statesmanlike qualities of the man. He contrasted the West of twelve years ago and of to-day, as he saw it, and pointed out that the marvelous prosperity and forward movement of to-day was in large measure due to the policies which have been in operation in Canada since 1886. His declarations in regard to Esquimalt harbor as the Pacific naval base of the Canadian navy, and to the possibilities of Vancouver Island when opened up by a branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific, making this the southern terminus of the line, were received with cheers. As regards Victoria's harbor, he assured the gathering that he was fully alive to the necessity for its improvement, and that he would meet every reasonable demand for anything which would help to that end.

Hon. Wm. Templeman spoke briefly, expressing his gratification at the cordiality of the welcome given his colleague. Fred. Peters, K.C., spoke appreciatively of the guests of the evening, whom he has known for years, and Mr. W. Jackson enthused the audience by his references to provincial affairs.

Lieut.-Col. F. B. Gregory was in the chair, and an excellent chairman he made. With him on the platform were Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Wm. Templeman, Minister of Inland Revenue and Mines; R. B. McKinnon, president Victoria Liberal Association; H. A. Munn, president of the Young Liberals Club; D. W. Higgins, A. B. Fraser, Jr., A. B. McNeill, Simon Leiser, president of the Board of Trade; Fred. Peters, K.C.; R. L. Drury, W. C. Campbell, W. R. Grant, A. C. Grant, Alex. W. Smith, Ottawa; John Nelson, Fred. White, B. C. Nicholas, James Wilson, Frank Higgins, James Bell, M. B. Jackson, H. W. Laird, W. E. Ditchburn, and many others.

Fred. Peters, the first speaker, referred to the unanimity with which the Liberals of the city had received the Minister of Public Works. For two years the minister had been receiving all sorts of representations and desires of the people of Victoria; been asked for almost impossibilities; all that he was asked for that evening was to receive the most cordial welcome of the Liberals of the capital city of a great province. Dr. Pugsley came from a great province, a province which had produced many distinguished Canadians, many great administrators. He was the sort of man who was wanted in public life, administrator and able defender of the policies of the government. Every one who knew Dr. Pugsley knew that no man could be so fond of himself, and while he was one of the most attacked of the ministers he was both able to defend himself, and had a good defence to make. (Hear, hear.) He was one of the brightest and ablest members of the cabinet and head of one of the great departments of state, that of charge of the public works of the Dominion, of more than half a continent. Coming here from a great province, deserving of the best attention of the government.

Minister of Inland Revenue.
Hon. Wm. Templeman got a splendid reception from the audience when he rose to speak, the cheering being long and hearty. He expressed his pleasure at seeing such a fine audience present to greet his colleague. He was sorry, as he was sure they were, that he was not speaking to them as the representative of Victoria, but he was speaking as the representative of the province in the government and still in the fight. When next the occasion offered, either he or some other Liberal would contest the seat, and he was greatly mistaken if the opposition could turn the trick a second time. To represent a province was no bed of roses, and there was always some one to say that a minister had failed to accomplish his job or that. During the last year he had been impressing on the Premier and his other colleagues that it was their bounden duty to come West, meet the people and judge of the requirements of the country. As a result of his advocacy Dr. Pugsley was here, the Secretary of State had been here the other day—only sorry he could not remain longer—and Hon. Mr. Fisher would be here in a couple of weeks.

Many large questions had been presented to Dr. Pugsley, and in those views regarding the improvement of the harbor and the desirability of resuscitating the Songhees from the reserve, he himself, as a resident of Victoria, was heartily in accord and sympathy with the representations made to his colleagues. He represented now, as a result of the kindness of his friend, Mr. Simon, in giving up the seat—a constituency a hundred times as large as Prince Edward Island, three times as large as New Brunswick, and seven or eight times as large as Nova Scotia, Canada had in it a great country with a great future. With the G. T. P. building to Prince Rupert, and the opening up of industries along the coast, it would be an empire in itself. Unfortunately his colleague's business prevented him at the last minute going up to Prince Rupert, as he had intended. He himself was leaving for his constituency on Wednesday, and Dr. Pugsley had delegated him to promise, on behalf of the government, all necessary public works to Prince Rupert. He knew of many it needed.

"I am heartily glad to meet my old friends," said Mr. Templeman in conclusion. "I am sorry not to be your representative in parliament, and may never be, but I know that I represent in Ottawa to-day the majority of the people of Victoria (cheers). And I want you all to know this, that I am as true to the city of Victoria, as true to the people of Victoria, as true to the interests of the city, as though I were your representative. (Renewed cheers.)"

The minister was given another ovation on the conclusion of his speech, the large audience rising and singing "For he's a jolly good fellow," and giving round and round of cheers.

Minister of Public Works.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley was cheered heartily when he rose and expressed his appreciation of the compliment paid him in getting up such a demonstration on such short notice. He referred to his old acquaintance with Mr. Peters and Col. Gregory and his pleasure at finding so many gentlemen from New Brunswick and the other maritime provinces who were helping to develop this great province. Continuing, he said:

"I am proud of my own province. I recognize it has many and varied resources, immense wealth of fisheries, vast timber areas, fine agricultural land. But, sir, as I have come West I have felt that while I have reason to take pride in my own province as being one of the best in Canada, still I am afraid that I cannot truthfully say now that it is the best, because in this great Dominion we have a galaxy of provinces extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific which, for their varied resources and for the people who are engaged in developing these resources, cannot be surpassed by any country under the sun. Whether on the east side of the Atlantic, or upon the other either, I do not believe, sir, there is anywhere to be found, or that there has ever been in the history of the world, a people so full of enterprise, so full of energy, or so full of the ability to accomplish great things as the people of Canada. (Cheers.)"

"As I have come to this western land, to this young man's country, I have felt the truth of that statement. From the great lakes to your cities here on the Pacific we have a people who, in these last ten years, have pushed their country forward with marvelous rapidity along the lines of progress and development."

"You have a great province. I am simply amazed at what I recognize are the resources of this great province of British Columbia, and I cannot but believe that it has a splendid future in store for it. I have come West on a voyage of discovery, as it were. When I became a member of the cabinet, (Concluded on page 14.)"

BUT ONE FAMILY IN SEVEN HAS BATHTUB

So Says Lecturer, and Also That Man Spends Most for Dress.

Berkeley, Cal., July 27.—Only one family in seven has a bath tub, and but one family in four having an income less than $1,100 can afford one, according to statistics in the possession of Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, expert in household economy from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mrs. Richards is here delivering a course of lectures at the university summer session.

Another point made by the lecturer was that despite popular impression to the contrary, man spends more money for dress than does woman. She said to-day that her statistics prove that while a woman in four spends $22 for clothes her husband spends $32. In the case of boys and girls the latter spends the most, the ratio being $15 to $12.

SERIOUS FIRE IN PETERBORO

LUMBER MILLS WERE WIPED OUT LAST NIGHT

There is Loss of Nearly $100,000 on That and Another Fire.

(Special to the Times.)

Peterboro, Ont., July 27.—Nearly one hundred thousand dollars' worth of lumber last night when the Peterboro Lumber Company's mills on Burnham's Point, with a large quantity of lumber and the big frame house of Florence & Company, corner of Simcoe and Bethune streets, were devoured by fire without the slightest chance of saving anything.

The fire at the Peterboro Lumber Company's mills started towards the front of the buildings soon after one o'clock. Two watchmen were on duty and were going their rounds. One of the men came upon the fire when it was a very small affair. He ran for water-pails, but when he returned the fire had gained such headway that the pails were of no avail. The company employed about eighty men. The estimated loss in cash is in the neighborhood of seventy-five thousand dollars, while the insurance carried was comparatively small. The loss on Florence & Company's building and contents is four thousand.

AVIATOR FAILED AGAIN.

Calais, France, July 27.—Hubert Latham's ill-luck pursued him today when he made a second attempt to cross the English channel in his aeroplane, and once more was hurled into the water far from shore. After repairing his machine, which met with a minor accident this morning, Latham started to cross the channel at 6 o'clock this evening. He was within two miles of the Dover shore when his machine plunged into the waves. A British warship rescued him. He was uninjured.

The Koh-i-noor diamond originally weighed nearly 800 carats, but by successive cuttings has been reduced to 108 carats.

Some of our articles may seem high in price compared with others of lighter weight that look just the same, but weight and worth considered they are as low in price as any, and far lower than many. SMALL HOTEL BURNED.

Mount Vernon, Wash., July 27.—The Osterman hotel, a two-story frame building, was burned to the ground early Sunday morning from some unknown cause. The store of Orin Hightower, adjoining the hotel, and his residence were also destroyed. The loss of the hotel, which was owned by Hugo Bauman, was about $4,000, covered by insurance. The loss on the Hightower store and residence was about $2,000.

CONDEMN PASTEURIZING.

Chicago, July 27.—A city council health committee decided that pasteurization of milk was ineffective and useless, if not dangerous. A majority voted for the repeal of the action of the milk ordinance requiring the pasteurization of milk from other than tuberculin tested cows.

METHOD IN HIS MADNESS.

Yreka, Cal., July 27.—Joe Bailes is in jail here pending examination for his sanity because he walked into the Shasta County bank and demanded that the cashier pay him $2,500. He claimed he had whipped Jim Jeffries a few days ago at Chico, and as the result the money was due him. Bailes insisted that Jeffries was too big to knock out but that he threw up the sponge and the courts had awarded him the sum demanded of the bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O. Turnbull, lumber merchant, of Pilsbore, Man., have been spending a few days with friends on Pandora street and enjoying a trip round the city. They left last evening for the exhibition at Seattle on the way to their home in the Middle West.

Ald. Henderson agreed with Ald. McKeown, He did not believe in changing the plans. If they did, some other agent would be in with a new kind of paving. It was not well for property owners to think that they could come in at any time and change the plan.

Ald. Raymond said, he had discussed the question with a good many property owners on Cook street. They objected to the macadam on the ground that some of that recently laid was not well done. These people want any kind of a good surface and are willing to pay for it.

Ald. Turner said the residents were not dilly dallying. They said "give us a hard surface" and that was what they asked for.

The amendment of Ald. McKeown was defeated in the following division: Ayes, Mayor Hall, Ald. Fullerton, Henderson, Mable, McKeown, Nays, Ald. Stewart, Ross, Turner, Bishop, Humber and Raymond.

The motion of Ald. Turner that the question be referred to the city barrister for an opinion was then carried.

COOK STREET STILL TO FORE

CITY BARRISTER TO GIVE HIS OPINION

Ald. Turner Wants it Before Deciding on Course to Follow.

The Cook street improvement matter is still before the city council. On motion of Ald. Turner the opinion of the city barrister is to be taken on the power of the council with respect to whether the improvements must be carried out according to the terms of the original petition, viz: for a macadamized road, or whether the plans can be altered as requested later.

Last evening the city solicitor reported that the work must be proceeded with according to the original plan as petitioned for.

Immediately after the opinion was read, Ald. Turner took the floor, requesting that the opinion of the city barrister be obtained.

Ald. Turner moved that this be referred to the city barrister for his opinion. He said that he thought that it was right to have the opinion of the city barrister for guidance in future. This was not casting a reflection on the city solicitor. The council had before referred matters to the city barrister after the opinion of the city solicitor had been given. They had even referred matters to Vancouver.

Ald. McKeown thought this was simply putting off the work longer. He moved in amendment that the communication of the city solicitor be received and filed and the engineer be instructed to proceed with the original by-law.

Ald. Turner, speaking to the amendment, said that he had not sufficient confidence in the opinion of the city solicitor to take the opinion he had given as final. He wanted rather to appeal to the city barrister. A somewhat similar situation had come up in Victoria West when Mr. Mason gave the opinion that the plan could be changed. Now a different opinion was given. He wanted for future guidance that the city barrister's opinion should be taken.

Ald. McKeown thought it would be bad policy to stop work now. The council should know what it is going to do before it started. The work had been carried on part way under the original by-law.

COUNCIL TAKES UP ROUTINE

DIVERSITY OF MATTERS ARE DISPOSED OF

Lighting of Causeway is to Be Settled by Committee.

Considerable routine business was disposed of at last night's meeting of the city council.

Mayor Hall, Ald. Mable and the city electrician were appointed a committee to look into the question of lighting the causeway. The question to be decided is whether it shall be lighted from the Empress hotel or from the electric company's plant. The cheapest plan will be adopted.

The water commissioners recommended the spending of $25 for improvements on the existing equipment to make them more up-to-date. This was adopted.

A letter was received from the Vancouver Island Development League, asking for better accommodation in the market place for farmers. This was done at the request of the Matchless and Colwood Development League, it being pointed out that it was a great convenience for farmers.

Ald. Henderson said that it had before been pointed out that if there were more stalls more could be obtained from this source.

It was decided to refer this to the building inspector and market superintendent for report.

A communication announcing the date for the unveiling of the monument to J. J. Hill on the A.-Y.-P. exposition grounds, was received, together with an invitation for the council to be present.

This was received and filed.

An offer from Pemberton & Son to purchase property adjoining the cemetery, was referred to the cemetery committee for report.

Richard Drake wrote with respect to the stable on Bruce street, and asking that the council have the nuisance abated.

This was referred to the sanitary officer.

A petition was received asking if the salt water high pressure system was to be extended. This was referred to the streets committee.

Eight applications were received for stenographer at the city hall. On the fourth ballot Miss Violet Cameron was selected.

The water commissioner made a recommendation to amend the by-law relating to using water for lawns, to overcome the difficulty met in regulating the hours of watering for metered premises. This was adopted.

A letter was received from the water commissioner with respect to laying water pipes in the streets off Tolmie avenue. The cost was estimated at $4,385, the total cost being borne by Saanich municipality.

This was received.

Tenders for printing 150 copies of the voters' list were received as follows: Acme Press, $3.60 a page; T. R. Cusack, $3.50 a page. The latter tender of Mr. Cusack was accepted.

His worship explained that he had received a petition from some residents on Pembroke street who believed that it was intended to divide the work of street improvement. His worship thought it might be better to have Ald. Fullerton take this matter up with those concerned before further steps were taken to put the by-law forward.

Ald. Fullerton said he would not "butt in" in this matter.

The difficulty was explained that a part of the street which had been named as Pembroke street was found not to be officially known under that name.

A motion rescinding the motion applying to the misnamed section was carried.

NEW GRAND THEATRE.
Opening Night For New Programme Drew Loud Applause.

From the time the curtain rung up for the appearance of Thomas J. Price, who received a warm welcome after his vacation, until the laughter had subsided as folks made their way to the sidewalk at the close of the humorous little playlet by J. K. Emmett and Viola Crane, the interior of the Grand theatre last night was one continuous roar of laughter as act after act came and went, and each appeared better than the rest. The bill this week is certainly a tribute to Manager Jameson's judgment that Victoria likes a good show. The sound management have sent him something in line with the best, and Victoria audiences were not slow to recognize it.

The 14 no best act in the bill, Barry and Johnston open the imitations after the appearance of Thomas J. Price in a new song: "Sweetheart, Won't You Come With Me to Dreamland." Barry and Johnston are in "Held for Ransom." The humor in it is very original, and every word means laugh.

TWO LONG SHOTS WIN AT WILLOWS

ARCHIBALD SPOILS THE THIRD WITH GOOD RIDE

Muddy Track Plays Havoc With Form Chart Se- lections.

The preceding nights rain made the track at the Willows heavy and sticky yesterday, and two of the biggest surprises of the meeting were brought off in races one and two when Daddy Glop at 30 to 1, and Alcibiades at 20 to 1, were first past the post. The performance was only in the third race by the remarkable ride of Archibald on the favorite, Lazelle, which beat the longest shot in the race for first place by a length. After one of the hardest chases ever a horse was put to. From that out the winning streak of long shots for the day was dead, although the books tempted all backers with a 60 to 1 and other juicy prices.

Daddy Glop's win at 30 to 1 in the first was due entirely to the third chance running out when he had the race secure entering the straight. The winner proved a good mudder and took the inside rail when the leader ran out. As he passed the post there was no wild enthusiasm, but a discomfited lot of sports were figuring how much they would have won.

For James Neil to repeat the performance with Alcibiades in the second was unforeseen by even himself, and he was the most disgusted man on the track when his horse won at 20 to 1. Neil threw up his hands in disgust in front of the judge's stand as he recognized his outcast running past the post in the lead. He hadn't a dollar on the horse, and the chance, he says, won't come again.

The third race, one and a sixteenth miles, looked all to Joe Nealon as the horses concluded the first half mile. The Culver horse went to the front under the ride of Bowers and picked up five lengths. When Flavigny was two furlongs from the finish he was being urged on to make up lost ground by Archibald. He brought the horse through the mud in a manner that made Joe Nealon's backers look anxious, and landed him a length ahead of the long shot past the judge's box.

Archibald was given the mount at the first moment and a new book was made on that account. The book was posted with Sullivan to ride Lazelle. Sullivan, however, after coming from the previous race on Mike Ashlin, was then sick in the jockey room and Archibald took his place. As the change of jockeys would make a considerable difference in the price of the horse, Judge Frank St. Dunstan Skinner ordered a new book to be made.

Archibald also rode Barney Oldfield a winner, after waiting eight and a half minutes at the post to get off. He beat Fryer, which for once ran well, and did not lose more than half the distance and Elizabeth Harwood, in six and a half furlongs.

Archibald won his first race this meeting from Liddington and Vronsky, and Archibald proved much better than the big plough horse, Burleigh, while Emma G. ran third.

AERONAUT TALKS ON BEST WAY TO FLY

The Respective Merits of Mono- plane and Biplane Are Discussed.

When I started to study the problem of flight I had at the outset to choose the species of aeroplane I thought best, and I believed my choice had been justified, says Hubert Latham in the Daily Mail. The few terms I spent at Oxford intensified my knowledge of sport in all its forms, but it was not till I made a lucky balloon passage across the channel that I began to realize the possibilities of aerial navigation. In the spring of 1905 I was asked to drive a motor-boat at the Monte Carlo races. I gladly accepted. The boat was of the fastest, and its motor was an Antoinette, was, so its designer told me, fit to propel a flying machine, and built for that purpose. And then there M. Levassieur offered to build an aeroplane for me. Only my mother's firmly expressed authority prevented me from accepting, and I forgot my disappointment during the two years' hunting and travelling in Africa and Asia.

But while I rejoiced at the progress made in the meantime in the difficult arts of aeroplane building and driving, I could not forget that I had missed the first chance, and wondered whether I should again find so good an opportunity. Last February I spent a month at Pau and there had a chance of watching Wright's wonderful machine in three or four of its flights. This decided me, and early in March last I began experiments at Chalons Camp, thinking flying would be the easiest thing in the world to learn. And so it is. But what mistakes we made in learning to drive! The machine itself has hardly been altered from the beginning; in fact, it could have done all it has done as early in 1903 or 1904. If only its inventor had found capital at the time.

Up to the present there is an unquestionable superiority in the Wright biplane owing to the fact that it is designed to carry two persons. We hope to have a specially built machine in a short time, in which the disadvantage of the monoplane will no longer exist. Comparisons are odious, but Mr. Wright himself says that he believes in the future of the monoplane, whatever its present value may be. That it still leaves much room for improvement I have no doubt; in fact, M. Levassieur believes that to be thoroughly useful an aeroplane must possess at once much greater speed and much greater power than any type at the present day has shown itself capable of developing.

It seems as though the double-decker could not be brought up to the same limit in those two respects as the single-decker machine, provided the latter shows sufficient carrying power. Now, although the Chanute flyer, as perfected by the brothers Wright, has a carrying surface of sixty square metres, it does not seem to show more than a slight superiority in weight-lifting capacity over an Antoinette of thirty square metres or a Blériot of twenty-four.

The great objection to the monoplane up to the present day has been its lack of stability. Whatever may have been the grounds upon which such a theory was founded, most conclusive proofs have been given that it does not surpass its rivals in this respect. It is impossible for instance, to rely on one's hold on the levers in any type of biplane, whereas it is quite an easy feat on certain monoplanes, and one that can be continued for quite a long space of time. I believe, in fact, that in calm weather I could fly almost indefinitely with but occasional movements of the steering-rod.

The ability of a flyer to go in a wind, should also be considered. Great progress in this direction was made when a machine with less wind-resistant surface was brought out. It stands to reason that wind will have far less effect on the smaller surface, as indeed it has on a narrow-winged bird, like a sparrow or a plover, than on a broad-winged buzzard or heron. Speed is the defence against wind; speed is a great reserve of power, so as to be able to remedy any involuntary defection from the straight course by an increase of velocity, whatever the strength of the contending element may be.

As to the convenience and ease of starting or landing, it will probably be demonstrated more fully in the course of time. It should be kept in mind that there are very few, if any, experienced drivers of monoplanes. M. Blériot probably has had a more protracted course of self-teaching than any other man, and his mastery of his machine is wonderful. If a few such as he were to drive machines of various types, comparison would be possible. For my own part I consider my instruction is yet very far from complete, and I have to learn more than I already know before I begin to do fair justice to my machine. Yet in calm weather I already find it possible to start from any clear space of sufficient width, and to land under the same conditions, with the possibility of starting again without any extraneous aid. This, of course, compels us to carry a certain amount of extra weight in wheels, chassis, etc., but much is gained by the greater convenience.

Safety is the main point in such experiments, and as many have accused me of imprudence I wish to insist upon the extraordinary safety of the Antoinette flying machine. It is impossible to imagine anything breaking in the air. The wings can carry an enormous weight on any point without giving way, and they are strengthened by stout batwings. The rudders and the propeller are all calculated to resist an effort considerably greater than any they can possibly be called upon to withstand, and yet if anything gave way the balance of the machine would not materially change. I could at the worst glide without difficulty to the earth. If the balance were destroyed the machine would not acquire any considerable speed in its fall; could not, in fact, unless directed, purposely towards the ground, break its body or sustain more than easily repairable damage.

As for the driver, he is protected in any case. Though I have smashed my machine many a time, and expect to do so again before I gain complete mastery over it, I have never had the slightest bruise or scratch. Everything has to be broken to pieces before the man at the wheel suffers, and it is hard to conceive how such a complete wreck could take place.

One thing I thought best to guard against—splinters—for they run through cushions and skins like needles, and I had a strong canvas suit made of the cloth employed for fencing-jackets, and now consider the risks of an accident to myself as being reduced to a minimum. This goes far towards making a pilot. Perfect confidence in the machine and its qualities, a firm belief in the slightness of the risk, and a certain calm and ever-increasing control of the levers should lead one to any heights and over any country.

BURGLAR IS GIVEN DAMAGES FOR HURT

Curious Case From Germany, The Result of Paternal Government.

The Weekly Courier of Liverpool, in a humorous article on "Justice for Burglars," says:
We are accustomed to think that our English law courts manage to deal out a justice that will compare favorably with the Continental brands; but here, as in so many other things, our insular pride must abase itself before the achievements of Germany. From Pommerania comes an account of a case which has just been settled there with such sublime impartiality, such a superhuman mixture of rebuking with the one hand and cherishing with the other, as to make our notions of justice appear the fumbling crudities of troglodytes. On a dark night in this Pommeranian village a burglar, in the pursuit of his calling, found it necessary to enter a certain house by a top window. The matter appeared difficult, and the burglar might have experienced a serious set-back in his business had it not been that he discovered a ladder conveniently left out in the yard. In all professions it is a maximum that one man's mistake is another man's possible advantage, so we must not be too severe on the burglar for making unauthorized use of the ladder; it is what anyone would have done. The ladder was of the required height, and the burglar placed it against the wall, at the rate, he felt from one of the topmost rungs and broke his leg. Whereupon the police captured him, put him in a hospital, where his injured leg was tenderly treated, and in due course brought him before the magistrate.

But in this particular village there is a rigorous by-law as to the construction of ladders. No ladder may be used, or placed where they are likely to be used, unless they are fitted with a particular kind of top-piece. The ladder, however, which so grievously betrayed the burglar into the hands of the police, was flagrantly lacking this prescribed top-piece; the owner had thereby disobeyed the law, but had nevertheless physically distressed and mentally shocked a citizen while following his trade. All this came out at the trial. In England, where justice is a practical matter, the burglar would doubtless have been jailed, and the owner of the ladder, considering that his oversight had enabled the police to lay a rogue by the heels, would have come off with a rebuke. But in Germany justice is abstract, and has the nature of eternity. It is not to be persuaded from its course by insolent practicality. The burglar had been burglarized, and was therefore punishable; and punished he was. But he sustained injury from another person's carelessness, and so deserved compensation. It might be hazardous for him to climb ladders in future; his damaged leg might stiffen and become unyielding, and his nerve might be irretrievably spoilt.

The burglar's profession is sufficiently inconvenient as it is; there are often long periods of depression in it, when it is impossible for the burglar to find employment. And a burglar who has lost both legs and nerve for ladder work would be gravely handicapped. Moreover, the hospital had a considerable bill against him, which would probably prove a serious drain on the earnings of his business for some time. The owner of the illegal ladder was therefore ordered to settle the burglar's hospital bill for him, and to pay him damages besides for his broken leg.

HUDSON'S VESSEL REPRODUCED.
New York, July 27.—Three hundred years after her original and famous voyage, the reproduction of Henry Hudson's vessel, the Halfmoon, has come into New York harbor, resting on the Dutch freighter Soestdyk.

San Francisco, July 27.—Following the signing of an agreement, forty of the sixty-five members of the local Photo-Engravers' Union have returned to work in commercial shops. The engravers were locked out recently by the local newspapers, with the exception of the Daily News, and the commercial shops were dragged into the controversy when they attempted to prepare cuts for the daily press. The proprietors of the commercial shops agreed to maintain a neutral stand regarding the quarrel between the union and publishers and the engravers returned to their work.

San Francisco, July 27.—The claim value of 36 names drawn from the jury box was made returnable Wednesday, when it is expected the present venire will be exhausted.

The examination of talesmen proceeded quietly, notwithstanding the jurors had decided opinions respecting the guilt or innocence of the accused trolley magnate.

MINISTER TAKEN TO ESQUIMALT

HON. W. PUGSLEY IS SHOWN THE HARBOR

Party Escorts Him to Dry Dock Site—Left City To-day.

Yesterday afternoon Hon. William Pugsley, Hon. William Templeman and a number of prominent citizens of Victoria were the guests of the C. P. R. on a trip of inspection to Esquimalt harbor. The idea of the visit was to show the minister of public works the fine harbor which is there, but more particularly to make it clear to him that Esquimalt was the best place for the new dry dock which will in all probability be built in the near future.

After going around to the shipyards of the B. C. Marine Railway Company, the party landed at the Imperial government dock at the navy yard. They looked through the machine shops and one of the other buildings, and then passed on to the dry dock.

The minister was much impressed with the stability and large number of buildings at the navy yard, which are at present unused, but which will be necessary when the station is made the headquarters of the Canadian navy on this coast. A site was also pointed out where a new dry dock could be built in the natural basin between Signal Hill and the old village street. Almost all of this already belongs to the Imperial government, and the remainder could be purchased very cheaply.

On the way home one or two impromptu speeches were made. John Jardine, M. P., was the first to be called upon. He said they were all grateful to the minister of public works for coming to the city and taking such an interest in it and the harbor on which it was built. Every one here knew that the country had the richest possible resources which would be developed if the federal authorities would support them. He felt sure now that they had been presented to the minister in such a realistic way that they would receive his favorable consideration. He was very glad Dr. Pugsley was here, and he felt sure they would get such treatment at his hands as was reasonable, and what was not reasonable they did not want.

Ralph Smith, M. P., humbly remarked that he was glad to hear from the minister that he was to build a dry dock within the next two years. He felt sure Dr. Pugsley would do whatever he thought good for the district.

H. Dallas Heimcken said he was glad of the opportunity of speaking because they had been able to show the minister what he had never seen before. It was always a great pride to him to point out that Esquimalt undoubtedly owed its prosperity to the B. C. Marine Railway Company. The disadvantage was that this company was a dividend with the outside world at a disadvantage. They labored under the disadvantage of having to pay a tariff which their neighbors to the south did not pay. They also had to compete with the old country. He thought there should be a subsidy given to the B. C. Marine railway, the pioneer firm in this province. It gave him great pleasure to be able to make the visit of the minister pleasant, and he was also glad that he had been able to give him some information about the district.

At the Belleville street dock the party were met by R. Marple, general executive assistant of the C. P. R. and vice-president of the E. & N. railway, and Capt. Troup, who escorted the visitor to the Empress hotel.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley left this morning for Nanaimo, from which point he will go direct east via the Crow's Nest railway.

A STEAMER ASHORE.

Calmarag is on the Rocks Near Canoe, N. S.—May Be Floated.

Halifax, July 27.—The steamer Calmarag, Capt. Hyslop, and a crew of twenty, is fast on the rocks at "Snoring Ledges," the western end of Dover Island, a few miles west of White Point, Canoe. The Calmarag is registered 3,600 tons, built in 1892 at Newcastle, and is owned by Young and Noble of this port.

Capt. Hyslop, encountered thick weather all the way from Boston, and the ship had to be run on dead reckoning. Judging that he had run down the coast far enough, Capt. Hyslop hauled up, hoping to make the Strait of Canoe. Just before daylight breakers were sighted right ahead, and before the course of the ship could be changed she crashed on the rocks.

The vessel could not have struck a more exposed or rocky point. The water is well up in her hold, and has reached the engine room. There seems at present some chance of floating her, as the sea is moderating very fast, with a west wind.

The Calmarag is in ballast bound for Bathurst, N. B., to load deals.

BRITISH YEOMAN REGISTERING HERE

Walter Walker Going to San Francisco to Measure Barque.

Walter Walker, of the firm of Hall & Walker, of this city, leaves to-morrow on the steamer City of Puebla in order to measure the steamer British Yeoman, so that she may be granted British registry. The vessel is now lying at San Francisco, but her new registry home will be Victoria, B. C.

The vessel at one time bore the name that she does now. Then she was purchased in South America and her name changed to Stefano Rezeto. Recently she has again been purchased by W. S. Waterman, and the firm is applying for British registry. Victoria is the nearest point, so she will carry the name of this port. When she formerly bore the name she was registered at Sydney, N. S. W.

The British Yeoman is an iron barque of 1,897 tons net, and was built in 1880.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

Notice has been received at the marine office, Victoria, from the hydrographic office, Port Townsend, that a rock, not marked on the charts and with less than six feet over it, exists in the centre of the approach to Murder Cove, south end of Admiralty Island, Chatham Strait, Alaska. The rock is off Bartlett Point, where 4 fathoms is marked on the chart. As the wharf, belonging to the Tye Company, in Murder Cove, there is 20 feet at an extreme low tide.

Also that Yasha Island, about three miles off Murder Cove, must not be passed close to on its S. W. side as a number of dangerous boulders lie off from it for a considerable distance. Very little help shows on this reef.

MARINE NOTES

Steamer City of Puebla will call here to-morrow morning outward bound. She is booked right up. There are a dozen passengers going from this city and about 30 expected on the Marama, which is due from Alaska.

The two three-funnel Princess will have no lay over day this week, and accordingly the Princess Charlotte will leave every afternoon for Seattle at 5. The Princess May will take the place of the Charmer to-night.

Steamer Queen, of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, is expected to call here this afternoon on her return from Alaska with a large number of tourists aboard. They will spend several hours in this city.

A cable from Yokohama advises the sailing of the S. S. Tango Maru, from that port on the 21st inst, with 18 passengers and 125 tons measurement for discharge at this port. She is due to arrive August 4th.

Steamer Tees leaves to-night for the west coast, going as far as Quinsimo. She will have a quantity of freight, and the following passengers have booked on her: Bishop MacDonald, Father Childs, C. A. Henderson, A. W. McCurdy, the Musgrave party, Miss Dixon, L. R. Anderson, W. W. Rhodes, Mrs. Madden, Mr. Harlow, L. Cullison, J. A. Drinkwater, W. Johnston, Dr. Kerr and family and Mr. McIntyre.

BEING WRECKED REEEMAL.

San Francisco, July 27.—Though the tiny Gjoa survived the icebergs of the northwest passage under the able guidance of Capt. Amundsen, when she made the first known voyage through the long-sought-for straits, the little vessel is being wrecked by the continual onslaughts of curio hunters armed with jack-knives.

Since the sloop was hauled to its resting place in Golden Gate park a week ago, a regiment of souvenir hunters has made a wholesale attack on the wooden slides. Huge slides have been whittled away and now the police have been instructed to arrest those who desecrate the brave hull.

To apprehend the culprits who have already disfigured the craft, the police have copied the initials carved in the wood and all those who can be traced will be charged with malicious mischief.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, above the average level of the low water in each month of the year. This level is half a foot lower than the datum to which the sounding on the Admiralty chart of Victoria harbor are reduced.

TUG HOPE FLOATED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

High Tide at Six o'Clock Lifted Boat Clear of Rocks.

Tug Hope, towing a boom of logs which ran ashore on Fiddle reef, off Oak Bay early yesterday morning, was floated last evening about 6 o'clock. The tug was uninjured, and is able to continue her work. She was bringing a boom of about a dozen sections of logs for Sayward's mills when she went ashore. The tide, which is very strong at times, in that neighborhood, swung the tug on to the reef.

JOHANNESBURG IN BIG STOCK GAMBLE

Rand Shares on the Boom—Exciting Times in the Transvaal City.

Johannesburg is in the throes of a "boom," writes a correspondent of the London Daily Mail. If you have ever lived through a Johannesburg "boom" it is unnecessary to read any further. The mere announcement of the fact will conjure up the scene.

But if you have never seen Johannesburg, and never lived through a genuine hall-marked "boom," the matter becomes one of some difficulty. Some years ago there was a ping-pong craze in Britain. Now, suppose that instead of being played in one house in four, ping-pong had been played in every house, and imagine that the income of the householders depended upon their proficiency in ping-pong, and that their deadly earnestness was such that they went to the table at 6 a. m. and strove desperately till midnight, only snatching a few brief intervals for refreshments, and try to conceive this enthusiasm lasting for weeks at a time, to the exclusion of all other interests in life, well, that would be a "boom." A Johannesburg "boom" in ping-pong.

A Johannesburg "boom" is a remarkable manifestation of the concentration of the mind of an entire community upon one subject, to the exclusion of all other interests in life. The interest in the mine, the interest in the stock market, the interest in the progress of a record-breaking "corner" these are but feeble imitations of the concentration of Johannesburg upon the share market price list during a "boom."

If you walked the whole length of Commissioner street to-day and asked every decently-dressed man you met to tell you the present position of the closer union movement in South Africa, or the name of the prime minister of England, or whether the Sultan was still upon the throne of Constantinople, not half a dozen could give you the slightest information. If you told them the British ministry had been defeated, none would express sorrow, or delight, or even indifference—unless it struck them that the people might be buying on the "ticky" market. But if you told them that Fordberg Consolidated were being bought heavily by the stable, or that Vrededorp Deeps would probably strike the reef at 2,000 feet in a few days, one and all would welcome you as a lifelong friend and a benefactor of the human race.

For in "boom" times only one subject on earth has the faintest interest for Johannesburg, and that is the share market. Other topics may gain a slight reflected glory by being in some remote way associated with the share market, but that is all. We look for news, we want to know the window of a stockbroker's office. With eyes glued on a price list, men forget whether they are employed or out of work, rich or poor, married or single. They cannot remember yesterday's weather, or where they slept last night, or whether they lunched at home or at the club. The only thing they remember is that they bought at Tuppenny Tins which they bought at.

Advertising Talk No 9.

The man who says he knows all about advertising is a good deal like the ostrich with his head in the sand—there's a lot more to the proposition than he sees.

Did you ever know a man who had Pangoistia? Lots of men have it and don't know it—but an unfailing test is to mention advertising.

If the suspect says, "I know all about it—I can't tell me a thing. I've been through the mill, spent lots of money advertising, and I know all about it, etc., ad nauseum,"—that man has Pangoistia.

It's another name for the "know-it-all" anyway. It's an interesting thing to analyze a good case of Pangoistia. The smaller the man's business is, the less he had had to do with real advertising, and the longer he has been in business the worse his attack of Pangoistia is. It's not surprising that these conditions should be the most ideal for the development of the Pangoistia germ, because just as soon as a man really begins to learn something about advertising, he begins to learn that the longer he sticks to it the more he will have to learn.

One of the idiosyncrasies of the Pangoistia is that newspaper advertising doesn't pay. As a matter of fact it is a mystery to see how any form of advertising could pay some of these men who "know all about advertising." To be successful, any advertising campaign must have a good lot of common sense mixed with it, and any man who believes that newspaper space can in no way be used to increase his business is sure lacking in sense, or else he's a burglar or has some other form of occupation that doesn't improve with publicity.

The Pangoistia usually firmly believes that the best paying advertising proposition there is is a lot of hand-bills or dog-eared distributed around his neighborhood. Did you ever hear what your wife says when some small boy decorates her front lawn or piazza with half a dozen dog-eared in as many assorted colors? Somehow, they don't seem to induce any great amount of enthusiasm in her and her principal concern seems to be to get "the plaguy things into the stove" as soon as possible. It never seems to enter her head that those hand-bills were placed all over the lawn, the piazza, and anywhere else the small boy who did the distributing saw a good chance to drop a couple for the purpose of making her want to buy something. To her they are gratuitous (and unwelcome) fire kindling material.

Pangoistia takes another form in the man who "gives an ad. to the paper" because the editor's wife buys her groceries of him, or some of the boys trade there. Sometimes this variety of Pangoistia may be induced to transfer his "advertising" from one paper to another because the solicitor tells him how much trade will come to him from the office of the "Daily Screamer," or whatever it may be, if he will advertise with them instead of the "Hoorah." Nice large view to take of advertising, isn't it? Instead of one hand pushing on the saw and then sat down and waited to see how much dust was going to fall before you took the next cut. It's the steady daily strokes that count.

Pangoistia is another name for narrow-mindedness and like all narrow-minded people, Pangoistias are always ready to shift the burden of their mistakes onto someone else's shoulders. That's one reason why some men say that newspaper advertising doesn't pay them. The fault is theirs, not the newspaper's. Any newspaper advertising that is a circulation that is equal to 3 per cent. of the population of the territory it covers can be made profitable use of by any man who is willing to be shown something about advertising and who isn't afflicted with Pangoistia.

"Advertise where others advertise. The buying crowd must be there or the advertisements wouldn't be there. Drop your line where the others are catching fish unless you want a sleepy afternoon." Western Monthly.

12s. 6d. are now at 32s. 3d., and still rising.

I do not say that so far the "boom" can be compared to that of 1895, which according to the stories current to-day beat everything seen since the days of the South Sea Bubble. Perhaps it may not be even equal to that of 1892. But the conditions must be considered. After seven long and weary years waiting there has set in an upward tendency. Scrip which was hardly valuable enough to use as wall paper is suddenly in demand at decent prices. Shares bought at a few shillings are up to thirty and thirty-five and still soaring skywards with no sign of a check.

No wonder Johannesburg is excited. No wonder men start the day at 6 a. m. by reading the share market reports in the morning papers, and end it at midnight discussing Stock Exchange prospects in a club, or telephoning orders to their brokers. How long nobody remembers. But one day it came in silently and unobtrusively. Mysteriously the news went round that Some One was buying. And he—or

MRS. TAFT'S FATHER ILL.
Beverly, Mass., July 27.—Word of the serious illness of her father, John W.
Herron, caused Mrs. Taft, wife of the president of the United States, to prepare for a journey to Cincinnati, where the president's father-in-law is suffering from a stroke of paralysis.

home with another son-in-law, Charles Anderson.

MEXICO AS SEEN BY RESIDENT OF VICTORIA

Prof. Wickens Writes on His Impressions of Southern Republic.

Prof. E. G. Wickens, who is at present in Mexico on a visit, writes a letter to the Times which he says is especially for the youth of this city, in whom Mr.
Wickens takes an interest. He says:
I left Victoria June 25th on the Jebsen line steamer Ella. The first day in the Pacific it blew a little gale. The rest of the way the water was as smooth as the Gorge. I went ashore in San Francisco, Tuesday, 28th, and visited some places of interest, including the museum over the Ferry building, which is always worth a visit. There have been many millions spent here in fine buildings since the earthquake, but the broken streets and sidewalks are still in evidence—ruins of once famous places which remind one of that awful calamity. Leaving there that evening for San Pedro we stayed about eight hours. We proceeded on our way to Mazatlan, with a population of about 22,000. Here my English was at a great discount, as Spanish reigned supreme.
A few hours later we left for San Blas to discharge a little freight, and then on to Mazatlan. We arrived Wednesday morning, July 7th. This place looks like an Indian village, although there is a fine wharf, also a breakwater being built, apparently at a great expense. By noon I was on the National Central railway bound for Colima, sixty miles. We passed through a lake, the odor of which was anything but agreeable. I was told that in summer time the water gets so low and warm that the fish die on the beach. Passing along the line I saw coconuts, bananas and pineapple trees which I think somebody would like to examine. When I arrived I got on a street car drawn by four mules. I strolled around a few hours in the evening and some things remind me of Cairo. The habits of the inhabitants resemble the Egyptians. They have some nice plazas with the fire-flies abundant. In some streets there is hardly room for two vehicles to pass.

In the morning I saw the smoke coming in volumes from the only volcano in North America, which was but a short distance away. Next morning I took train for Gaudalajara. The journey was interesting up the mountains with oil-burning engine, passing through some scores of tunnels over a number of canyons looking down at the murky yellow colored river for many miles. The city of 150,000 people, and a mile above the sea level, is Cairo and Calcutta combined—the wealthiest and poorest—educated and most ignorant—in fact in most things the two extremes. They have a fine electric street car service for two classes. The streets are very narrow but scrupulously clean, many of them asphalt, other of cobblestone. The roofs like those in the Orient, are flat with flower gardens on top.
I visited many of the cathedrals, which are very fine. "Plazas and parks are in abundance with flowers. The markets are well supplied with fruits, cereals, flowers and other products of the neighborhood. I made visits to the suburban districts, where I saw four mules with two yokes across their backs and a large platform laid on top, with a piano in a cage. I was told it was going to a "big man" (hacienda), where there are no roads. I also saw some score of donkeys moving furniture. One had the bedstead on his back and the other the mattress and bedding, etc. Our children would laugh to see a cord of wood delivered by a number of donkeys, each one carrying two sticks. Passing through one of the streets my attention was drawn to a door going through some peculiar contortions, knocking their heads on the cement sidewalk and making some wailing sounds. I stood on the opposite side and waited for a time, when a lady of the house came out and gave them, wrapped in a cloth, ten cents.
Later upon making enquiries, I was told it was a moral and they had been hired. They go around at different times to the better class to collect alms.

most of the streets are crowded with people with foodstuff cooking in earth-ware jars over charcoal fires, that would make our Chinatown take a long whiff.
I left Gaudalajara for Mexico City, 605 miles from the Pacific, over a mile and a half in elevation and with a population of over a half million. The site is a dried up lake on the mountain surrounded with high hills. On my way here when the train stopped I was reminded at every station with guitars and vocalists, who certainly have left their teachers, if ever they had one, too soon.

They meet the train at all hours of the night and early morning, and make a tremendous fight to get the few cents offered by the passengers through the windows. They have also baskets full of entabes, the look of which would make our Indians refrain from eating.
Arriving next morning I took my abode at the Grand hotel. I shall extend my tour as time will permit, and arrive home by some steamer some time in the middle of August. I have distributed Victoria's literature on boat, trains and hotels.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women.
Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"Favorite Prescription" is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice.

Some of the numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of KNOWN COM-POSITION. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 50 one-cent stamps for cloth-bound copy.

If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge, by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Anty Drudge Gives a Lesson in Spelling

Little Mary—"F-E-L-S-N-A-P-T-H-A. What does that spell, Anty?"

Anty Drudge—"To you, Dearie, it spells just Fels-Naptha, the name of a soap. To your mother and me it spells an easy way of washing clothes in cool or lukewarm water, without boiling or hard rubbing and with a saving of time, labor, bother, discomfort and money. You'll learn, some day, my child, that it's a very important word to the housekeeper."

The biggest woman's club in America is the Anti-Drudgery Club.

It has more than a million members now.

All that's necessary to belong is to use Fels-Naptha soap and quit drudging on washday.

You'll have no more boiling of clothes, no bending over steamy suds, no back-breaking rubbing on a washboard in winter or summer.

You will be through with your washing before you would be well started on the old way.

And your clothes will be fresher, cleaner, whiter and sweeter.

Fels-Naptha does it.

The rules of the club are to be found

It has been found necessary to advance the prices of these teas to the grocer. Consequently the consumers will have to pay a correspondingly increased price, but undoubtedly they will be willing to do this in order to get the finest tea the world produces.

HUMANS AFFECTED FROM DISEASED COWS

Report on American Investigations Presented to International Conference.

American investigations of the responsibility of bovine tuberculosis for the persistent spread of the disease among human beings, particularly children, were officially reported to the eighth International Tuberculosis conference, in session at Stockholm, by Mr. Nathan Straus.

The paper by the New York philanthropist was presented by Dr. Arthur Randolph Green, medical director of the Straus pasteurized milk work, and one of the American delegates. It disclosed for the first time the overwhelming evidence gathered by the American investigators to show the responsibility of milk from tuberculosis cows for the infection of human beings with tuberculosis.

Mr. Straus's report was as follows: The topic assigned for discussion, the protection of healthy children from tuberculosis, suggests two important and imperative lines of action:

1. That their association, in families or otherwise, with tuberculosis patients be safeguarded by sanitary measures.

2. That their infection with bovine tuberculosis be prevented by focusing the sale or use of milk unless it comes from tuberculin-tested cows, or unless it has been properly pasteurized.

Overwhelming proofs of the necessity of stopping the use of tuberculosis milk has been supplied, particularly within the past year, by the definite tracing of a large number of cases of human tuberculosis to its bovine origin.

The Journal of the American Medical Association, in a leading editorial on May 22nd, pointed out that in over 300 cases investigated bacilli of the bovine type had been found in more than sixty cases, a little more than 20 per cent, and this highest authority among the medical journals of America declared: "Bovine tuberculosis is a source of danger to man sufficient to great to demand rigorous precautionary measures against it."

Quickly following this unanswerable summing up of the situation came the disclosure in the same month of the investigation conducted by Dr. William H. Park, director of the research laboratory of the New York city health department. Dr. Park reported to the Association of American Physicians that of seventeen fatal cases of generalized tuberculosis in infants, five were found to be due to bacilli of bovine type. Two cases of abdominal tuberculosis were examined, and both were due to the bovine bacillus. In five cases of tuberculosis of the bones and joints and four cases of pulmonary tuberculosis among babies, the bacilli were of the human type. Of twenty-nine cases of tuberculosis of the lymph glands of the neck nine showed bacilli of the bovine type. Dr. Park observed: "Bovine infection is certainly a considerable factor in the tuberculosis of children."

Thus we have cumulative proof of the responsibility of milk and milk products for the persistent spread of tuberculosis among human beings, and the recent investigations of the American Department of Agriculture have created a strong presumption that the infection has been of bovine origin in many cases other than those in which post-mortem examination discloses bacilli of undoubted bovine type. For Dr. John R. Mohler has proved that the human type bacilli transplanted into lots of human blood, indicating that the form of the tubercle bacillus is due to the media in which it lives, and Dr. Schroeder says: "If the two types really differ in an important way it is only that the type commoner in cattle is of much higher pathogenic virulence than that commoner in man."

Besides the indisputable evidence that bovine tuberculosis is transmitted to human beings, particularly to children, we have to recognize the fact of the extent of tuberculosis among the dairy herds. Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the American Bureau of Animal Industry, in his last annual report showed that more than 10 per cent. of the dairy cattle were tuberculous. "This disease is undoubtedly on the increase," he said. Dr. Moore, of Cornell University, found tuberculosis in 302 out of 421 herds examined in New York state, about one-third of the animals being diseased.

Then we have the evidence of the undoubted presence of tubercle bacilli in milk offered for sale in our cities. Wherever examinations have been made, living, virulent germs of tuberculosis have been found in considerable number of the samples taken from the milk dealers.

Obviously, therefore, the efficient protection of human beings, and particularly children, from tuberculosis requires that a summary stop be put to the almost universal practice of using milk of doubtful origin in the raw state.

Summing up the results of the milk investigation, Surgeon-General Walter Wyman writes: "The important subject of pasteurization has been carefully studied by Dr. Rosenau, who points out its advantages and discusses its inconveniences. He recommends 50 degrees Centigrade (140 degrees Fahrenheit) as the best temperature to use in pasteurizing milk, and as this degree of heat is sufficient to destroy the pathogenic micro-organisms without sterilizing the milk itself. Pasteurization is forced upon us by present conditions. It prevents much sickness and saves many lives."

And Dr. Schroeder writes: "It is a simple matter to destroy tubercle bacilli in milk, and cream by pasteurization. It is necessary to educate men to a realization that tuberculosis is as common among dairy cows that many years must pass before we can reasonably hope to eradicate it, and that in the meantime pasteurization is absolutely necessary for the protection of public health."

The prevention of the infection of healthy children with tuberculosis milk requires the active and willing co-operation of the dairyman, the milk dealer, the legislator, the health officer, and the doctor. That these men of diverse interests may work together to enforce the pasteurization of milk that is not from tuberculin tested herds requires the earnest endeavors of the organizations that have been formed to fight tuberculosis, and the assistance of the pulpit and the press to create such well-informed public sentiment that it will be regarded as a crime to feed a child upon milk of doubtful origin unless it has been properly pasteurized.

BIBLE BEST SELLER ON ALL BOOK COUNTERS

Facts That Show Its Ever-Increasing Favor With Mankind.

The question as to whether or not the Bible is no longer read was raised by Rev. David W. Wylie of the Scotch Presbyterian church, in New York a week ago in his sermon. His topic was, "The Bible Lost and Found." In the course of his remarks, Dr. Wylie said: "We are in danger of losing the Bible. It has only desultory reading in our public schools, and is ignored almost entirely now by our great colleges and universities. To a large extent it is unknown to our present generation of students."

"A student in one of our own city universities was recently asked why the Hittites were. He replied that he was not sure, but thought they were a tribe of North American Indians. The literary journals of to-day and the nation's public men do not know the Bible, or speak of it, or quote from it as they used to do."

A New York Times reporter interviewed William H. Haven, secretary of the American Bible Society, as to the popularity of the Bible. The latter said: "In spite of the various criticisms that have been made, the Bible remains the most popular of all books in our American universities. I can say that there were never so many young men in the colleges of the United States attending Bible classes as at present. Do not misinterpret this as applying to the number of students. I mean the percentage as applied to the total number of students."

Figures compiled by the representatives of our society show that the Bible was never so widely circulated as it is to-day. It has been translated into over 500 languages and dialects. By far the greater part of these translations were made during the last century. "The Bible societies distribute over eight or nine million copies each year. These figures are exclusive of the large number of Bibles placed in circulation by publishing firms for purely commercial purposes. The Bible is the best-selling book in the world. There are a number of publishing houses that make a specialty of it, and that make much money out of it. I would say that a conservative estimate of the number of Bibles issued by publishing houses would reach the sum of about three million a year."

This makes a total of 12,000,000 copies that are circulated each year when we take into the number that are put out by Bible societies. In America alone the Bible societies put into circulation over 500,000 copies a year. These are issued in over sixty languages. I would say that a conservative estimate of the number of Bibles issued annually in the United States would reach the sum of 1,500,000."

The head of a large publishing house is authority for the statement that the demand for Bibles is on the increase. "It is noticeable," said the publisher, "among bookkeepers that the typical bookman of the student is now paying more attention to the Bible. Young men who are easily seen to be students in our educational institutions come in with great frequency and ask for special editions of the Scriptures. They are seeking nowadays the modern editions with all the footnotes and explanatory notes. In other words, I wish to point out to you that it is the more expensive Bible that is attracting these students."

"Take Shakespeare. I have a demand for his works that amounts to more than 5,000 copies per annum. But I sell many times that number of Bibles, and the demand is on the increase each year. The sale of the Bible to one outside of the book trade is surprising. When you come to consider that the Bible is now being printed and circulated in more than 500 dialects and languages, you can only see what this great annual work and 'best-seller' is. Why, the Bible is the greatest seller of them all. There is always a great demand for it, and any publishing house or bookstore in any place cannot afford to be without a goodly number on hand."

"The Bible is printed in 121 different languages and dialects in Africa alone. There are 52 different versions of it on sale in America, while 177 different kinds of Bibles in as many languages are to be had among the Asiatics. In Australia and Oceania there are distributed 20 varieties of Bibles, and Europe takes 47 varieties."

"The Bible is published to-day in every known language of the world. It has been put into every tongue ever since Knott, one of the early missionaries, translated it into the Tahitian language, thus starting the movement of spreading Bibles all over the world. This movement saw a number of languages without written characters. The missionaries could not, of course, translate and publish the Bible into these. They then set to work and formed written characters of those languages which were without them, and in this way made permanent translations of the Scriptures."

"In this way there have been 150 written languages created by these missionaries during the past century. When the Bible is translated into any of these non-Caucasian languages, there is no trouble selling it. Said a missionary in China: 'For many years our work has consisted largely of creating a demand for the Scriptures. The past two years has found us unequal to supply the existing demand. The question was, formerly, 'How many people can be urged to buy?' Now it is, 'How many books can we supply? Only the answers to these questions set the limit to our opportunities.'

The American Bible Society spends about $200,000 annually in the manufacture and distribution of the Bible and gets back about $200,000. Besides its printing establishment in New York it has offices in Shanghai, Bangkok, Yokohama, Beirut and Constantinople. These foreign offices publish as many Bibles as the home office, and at a much less cost. In Korea only the New Testament has been translated so far. In China, the complete Bible was published as early as 1825, while in Japan the translation was made 25 years ago.

"Of course the American Bible Society, like that of England, is in business for the purpose of supplying Bibles at the lowest possible price, and in carrying out this purpose cannot avoid suffering a financial loss, as the above figures show. Before the invention of the art of printing, the Bible was the most expensive book in the world. Even after the invention of printing the Bible could not be obtained for a long time except at fabulous prices. At so late a period as that of the American revolution, the cheapest edition of the Bible was valued at not less than $2 a volume. To-day the American Bible Society furnishes the entire Scriptures in German, for 30 cents, in English for 12 cents. The New Testament in English is sold for 5 cents. The most expensive Bible on the list of the society is the one that is bound in flexible skin and printed on the best India paper, which is sold for $18."

To-day the Bible is not only the cheapest book in the world, but the one which is by far the 'best-seller' of any that is now or ever has been published."

WEALTH OF CANADA'S LITTLE-KNOWN LANDS

Vast Sources of Natural Riches Which Are Yet Untouched.

The vast inland lakes of Canada's great northlands, as well as the smaller lakes and rivers, are teeming with fish; whitefish, salmon trout, mountain and Arctic trout, king salmon, pike, pickerel, and great varieties of other fish are to be found. Jackfish weighing up to 15 pounds, trout 50 pounds, and sturgeon over 100 pounds in weight are common. Herring in vast numbers from the Arctic Ocean and their way up the Mackenzie river as far as Great Bear lake. At Great Slave lake and along the Mackenzie river, they have a fish peculiar to those parts. It was noted by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the discoverer of the river that bears his name, that the "Enchmu" (or unknown), which name has stuck to it ever since. It is a large, silvery-scaled fish, salmon-like in appearance, and weighs up to 50 pounds, says F. K. S. Lawrence in the Toronto Globe.

While this district cannot truthfully be called an ideal one for stock-raising, although it is considered so by many (the ideal country for stock-raising existing only in imagination), the abundance of upland and lowland hay, pea-vine and red-top, and the heavy growth of marsh grass, make it an easy matter to provide food for the wintering of stock. Horses forage the year round, and even those not wanted in harness for the winter are turned out after the ground freezes in the fall to shift for themselves through the winter, and are taken in again and put to work in the spring. Even colts are frequently left out for the winter, and like the older horses, they paw away the snow and find an abundance of nourishing food beneath.

Cattle frequently stay put until Christmas, after which dairy cows and young stock are stabled and fed, while the rest are turned out to a straw-spick which is their only shelter. The latter are generally found to be in as good condition in the spring as those that are stabled. The percentage of loss is not more than five per cent, as compared with ten per cent, in the south. The dairy industry is proving a financial success, and it is certain that with improvement in the breeding of the herds stock-raising and dairying will soon develop into an important and profitable industry.

The Rocky mountains are the home of the famous mountain sheep and goat, the fierce grizzly and the cinnamon bear, all well known there. Elk and a number of deer are also found here. In the vast country between the Rockies and Hudson Bay, as well as the west coast, moose, deer, and black and brown bears are common. The grey timber wolf, coyote, wolverine, fox, beaver, otter-fisher, marten, mink, ermine, lynx, rabbit, and squirrel are found to be well distributed. The last remnant of the buffalo are found near Fort Smith, in the Peace River district. They are being protected by the government. Cranes, geese, brants, swans, ducks of great variety, gulls, snipes and plovers are numerous, as well as great numbers of birds.

The Saskatoon, or service berry, is peculiar to the northwest, and is much sought after by the bears, whose liking for the delicious fruit often lands them within easy reach of the Hunter's rifle. Strawberries, raspberries, currants, high and low bush-cranberries, gooseberries, cherries and a number of other berries are found in great abundance.

A mere handful of white people, less than 2,000, rule this empire of the north and attend to the business, which is already estimated by the million-dollar standard. The 30,000 Indians are peaceable, having been taught by precept, judicious treatment and tactful handling (if not always by example) that the white man's mission among them was one of peace and good-will. In no country in the world are life and property safer than in this region, remote as it is from all the restraining influences of civilization (and bad whisky). The work of that splendid body, the R. N. W. M. P., is greatly appreciated by all alike, as they do their duty without fear or favor, and do not count their personal safety or comfort in the least while in discharge of their duty. Canada has, in her mounted police, a body of men of which she may well be proud.

The opinion of such a man as Hon. Edgar Dewdney, for many years minister of the interior at Ottawa, later governor of British Columbia, will be of interest. Speaking of the part of the Peace River district that lies in British Columbia, he said: "There are undoubtedly many rich mineral deposits still untouched." "Gold has been exploited there for a number of years and nitrate silver has also been discovered in large blocks." "The Peace River country is at present practically uninhabited. It can hold and feed millions. The climate is by no means severe." "The opening up of this land, by railways will mean an immense influx of people north, for there is little doubt that it is one of the richest and most attractive portions of British Columbia."

The present Dominion government is adopting a wise course in pursuing a vigorous and clear-cut policy in the opening up of this country, as evidenced by the extension of the survey, the extension and the improvement of the mail service, the establishment of an experimental station on the Peace river at Fort William, the building of telegraph lines, the improvement of the waterways and in the establishment of a northern land district. The provincial government see a great future for this land, and are laying out roads, building bridges, assisting railroad construction, building telephones, establishing schools, encouraging agriculture and stock-raising, and taking up the regulations of the judicial affairs of the newer portions of the country.

Last, but by no means least, in the forces that make for the founding of this empire of the north is the spirit of determination, the spirit of the conqueror, shown by the daring pioneers who have gone out from the older provinces; from England, Scotland and Ireland and from the United States. These were picked men and women, who believed in their country and in themselves, who believed that there was a country worth fighting for, worth living for and worth dying for, if necessary or duty should call.

But what about the future? What will it all mean to Canadians? What will it all mean to the people of Great Britain? These are questions that can only be answered by the people themselves. While I look forward with confidence to the future of this great empire of the north, I would impress upon all who are interested in the growth and development of a greater Canada and a greater British Empire the necessity of waking up to the tremendous possibilities that to-day lie hidden in this silent northland.

A WIFE'S DEVOTION.

Nursed Husband Through Illness While Herself Suffering.

San Francisco, July 27. — A pretty story of wifely devotion was brought to light when it became known that Mrs. E. E. Calvin, wife of the vice-president and general manager of the Southern Pacific, nursed her husband back to health after an operation for appendicitis performed July 4th, while she was suffering from the same disease and was so ill that at times hardly able to come to his bedside.

Fearing that knowledge of her illness might affect the recovery of her husband, the courageous woman daily sat beside his bed and with forced smile and cheerful words, assisted materially in bringing about a rapid recovery. But notwithstanding her own desire to continue nursing her husband, the surgeons finally ordered Mrs. Calvin to prepare for an operation, as the progress of the disease was endangering her life.

Reluctantly she consented, and when she went into the sick room to tell Calvin that the doctors had ordered her to rest by taking a short trip to Los Angeles, Mrs. Calvin was so weak that she fainted before she said farewell. A few days ago she entered the general hospital of Dr. Florence Warr and her veriform appendix was removed.

And now the situation is reversed. Mrs. Calvin is the nursed, while her husband is so far recovered from his operation that he is able to call at the Ward hospital daily and aid the nurses in caring for the devoted woman who so nearly gave up her life for him.

GREAT STRIKE IN SWEDEN.

Stockholm, July 27.—Forty thousand workers in the paper, woolen, cotton and allied industries went on strike yesterday. A circular has been issued to the trades unions throughout the country calling for a general strike on August 4th.

Another "Sunshine" Feature

This is an entirely new idea, and will especially interest people who reside in natural gas districts. The gas ring takes the place of the lower Sunshine fire-pot, thus making it possible to burn gas in your furnace without inconvenience. This special treatment, besides meaning quicker and greater radiation from the radiator and dome than cold chill iron could possibly give, acts as protection for the bolts, rivets and rods from inroads of gas. When cast iron comes in contact with gas, the gas is so corrosive that it causes the metal to rust, which prevents the slightest possibility of rust commencing anywhere in Sunshine Furnace.

The "Near Eastern" question is always looming up like a veritable "old man of the sea," and if trouble does break out in Europe it is far more likely to arise over some matter affecting the Balkan principalities than over any other issue. The Balkan States and Danubian principalities are really Europe's present storm centre, and a trip on the lower Danube gives one some idea of how easy it may be to explode this powder magazine. On such a trip one meets people of every nationality and many of these travellers are the secret or open emissaries of some of the great powers, or minor states of Europe. For some reason or other, boats as well as trains usually arrive and leave Belgrade at daybreak. So, for this trip, we were obliged to catch an Austrian steamer at about 5 a.m. From the deck we had a beautiful view of Belgrade, or in Serbian, Beograd, which means White City, while we passed from the Save into the Danube, coasting around and under the lofty walls and cliffs of the old fortress—a Roman and Turkish relic, writes Muriel E. Moorhead in the Toronto Globe. Then we went below and drank our early morning coffee, mostly of the "gypsy" kind, which is a very strong, such as one gets in this country, to the hum of about half a dozen languages. A young Turk, a Serbian officer and a priest of his church, all in equally strange costumes, were on one side of the table, while two Germans in plain caps, etc., were on the other. A group of Hungarian officers were having a very lively talk in their awe-inspiring language, which contrasted strangely with the chattering sounds from a couple of Roumanians near by. Later a young Scotch mining engineer appeared, but his broad accent seemed only to add another foreign tongue to our table of already six languages.

As we passed down the river, with Serbia on one side and Hungary on the other, nothing very extraordinary was to be seen—only well-cultivated fields and vineyards on the Serbian bank, and huge herds of sheep and cattle, as well as geese, on the Hungarian bank. At about 7 o'clock we passed the picturesque town of Semendria (Semendria in Serbian), with its ancient city wall and towers still rising above the water. Not until after 10 o'clock did we reach the grandest part of the scenery. But from that on until late in the afternoon our views were wide open, trying to take in the wonderful sights spread out before us. At one moment it seemed as if the broad river had come to an end, shut in with rocky mountains on all sides, and then our boat would slip around the corner, as it were, of one of these cliffs and on would go a little farther to repeat the same performance. The finest part of the scenery is in the pass of Cassan, where the mighty Danube has to squeeze itself through a passage only 180 yards wide, with tremendous cliffs rising right out of the water to an incredible height, so that the sun can hardly ever have a peep into the depths of the channel. On the Serbian side one sees plainly traces of the old Roman road and an inscription on the rock, still readable, commemorating the march of Emperor Trajan over it. Along the Hungarian side is a fine modern road, reminding one very much of the famous Axenstrasse of Switzerland, as it follows the course of the river, carved out on the rocks above.

About 5 p.m., when we arrived at the Hungarian town of Orsova—made attractive only by its baths, and as his patron was Hercules, the town has been called Herculesbad—Hungarian for Hercules' bath. Being almost on the border of Roumania, and in Hungary, the languages are innumerable, but English is not one of them. And when we spoke, people apologized at not being able to speak French, thinking that to be the language we were using. However, one day, after a long last drink of good Hungarian wine and a fine lunch of trout and caviare, we set off in a carriage for Orsova, via the little Turkish island of Ada Kaleh, now under Austro-Hungarian protection. On the way we stopped at a small chapel, where General Kossuth buried the Hungarian crown after being defeated in battle with the Austrians. Then a little farther on we reached the banks of the Danube and engaged a couple of Turks with a small boat to paddle us over to Ada Kaleh. This island is still Turkish, as it was overlooked in the treaty of Berlin, when Turkey's boundary was fixed.

After wandering about in the narrow streets, buying some cigarettes, etc., and looking at the old moats, ruins of walls and some tombs of old Turkish generals, we took our boat back to the mainland. Now it was nearly 5 o'clock and in half an hour we reached Orsova. On our way we had watched with much interest women loading railroad cars with coal. No work seems too heavy for them in this country. Later that evening we drove down along the banks of the Danube to see the "Iron Gates," the last pass of that great river, and although it was wonderful, it did not compare with the scenery above Orsova. Early the next morning we took the Hungarian steamer, a dirty and unattractive boat, for our return trip, and it was about 10 p.m. before we saw the lights of Belgrade as they sparkled away up the rocks overlooking the Danube.

It will be easily understood how a hot word, a chance phrase or some unpremeditated act by one of the many officials or others of the various nationalities who so frequently meet in the wine shops, the dance halls or theatres might precipitate a conflagration, especially during a time when burning questions are being discussed and when territories are being virtually annexed by one or other of the powers.

RAILWAYS THROUGH THE ALPS

Where only the native mountaineers were formerly at home their place is taken by navvies and workmen from the plains, and a new industrial population is filling up the valleys which have long been sending their young men and women to the cities, and have for half a century past been less populous than they were in the days of Hannibal and of Caesar. In the nineteenth century the sparsely populated Alps were the playground of Europe. In the twentieth the valleys at least have become its workshop, as well as its trade highways, though the upper slopes, the high passes, the glaciers and the peaks will continue to attract the tired intellectual workers of all the lowland countries.—London Morning Post.

SPRAINED WRIST AND ANKLE

After Being Laid Up With Great Pain for Ten Days, Relief Was Gained Instantly by Applying NERVILINE

One of the most soul-distressing accidents that can befall one is a bad ankle or wrist sprain. "If I had only known of NERVILINE earlier, I could have saved myself an enormous amount of pain, and many agonizing nights of sleeplessness." Thus writes P. P. Quinn, a young farmer living near Brookville.

"I tumbled from a hay loft to the barn floor and sprained my right ankle and left wrist. They swelled rapidly and caused excruciating pains. It was not convenient to go to the city, and the liniment in the house was useless. When I got NERVILINE relief came quickly. It took down the swelling, relieved the pain and gave me wonderful comfort."

"I can recommend NERVILINE for strains, bruises, swellings, muscular pains, and sore back. I have proved it a sure cure in such cases."

"Think what it might save you from to you to have right in your home a ready for an accident or emergent sickness, a bottle or two of NERVILINE. Get it to-day for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarthosone Co., Kingston, Ont."

DIVINING RODS AND DIVINERS

FINDING OF WATER BY THIS MEANS CERTAIN

Modern Science Attributes This Mysterious Power to Electricity.

The search for submerged treasure going on for the past two or three years in Tobermory Bay, off the west of Scotland, has been the means of awakening public interest again, in the dowser and his marvellous art. All ordinary means having failed to locate the much desired Spanish treasure, the syndicate conducting the search evoked the assistance, recently, of a water diviner, who had been prospecting all his life for various kinds of metals, as well as for hidden springs and streams. In the course of the first two days devoted to his task, the expert "struck it rich," so far as the bager metals were concerned. He spotted, from a boat, no fewer than fourteen guns and some relics of slight value, and these articles were found embedded in several feet of silt, and under many fathoms of water. Of gold and silver, little or nothing was discovered, says the Irish Independent.

Opinion appears to be pretty well divided as to whether the diviner's wand is a true and certain guide to needed water; and it is a curious circumstance that local authorities possess, evidently, no legal right to employ or pay for his services out of the rates. Not long ago the members of a certain Paris council who had commissioned a water finder, were surcharged the fee paid to him, the government auditor maintaining that there are no such powers as those claimed by the diviner. This view was subsequently upheld in the law courts.

There are about thirty professional dowsers in these islands, and the majority of them seem to thrive and prosper. Among those who have, at one time or another, patronised these knights of the magic wand are Lord Salisbury, Lord Londonderry, Lord Minto, Lord Bute and Mr. A. J. Balfour, ex-president, and none of these is usually regarded as superstitious or unduly credulous. Mr. E. Vaughan Jenkins declared some years ago that there had come under his personal observations seventy or eighty cases in which dowsers were employed, and that their efforts were uniformly and wonderfully successful.

Scientific investigation, on scientific lines, into the claims and pretensions of water dowsing, was carried out by Professor Wertheimer, of Bristol Technical College. The experiments, divided into six classes, numbered 23, and were participated in by three professional and three amateur dowsers. In one set of experiments the efforts of the specialists were not attended with much success, and it was demonstrated that men of equal experience and standing formed different opinions of the same place—even in a comparatively narrow area within which they were told water did exist, though they were not told exactly where it was to be found. The correct indications did not exceed two out of every five, and were obtained by a number of Bristol students on their own admission, proceeded entirely on guess work. In another series of trials, the dowsers were "successful to an extent that could not be accounted for by mere chance."

Professor W. F. Barrett, one of the founders and presidents of the Psychological Research Society, is another notable scientist who made some elaborate experiments with the view of solving once for all the problem of whether or not dowsers were what they represented themselves to be. For his operations he fixed, in the first instance, upon two small fields surrounded with high walls on the side of a somewhat lofty Irish mountain. "A dowsing was brought over from England, who knew nothing of Ireland or its geology, and whose education and acquaintance with books were very limited. He was not told where he was to go, nor was he given an opportunity of interviewing anybody in the neighbourhood. In one field he promptly indicated a spot where, he said, plenty of water could be obtained at a depth of fifteen feet. In the adjacent part, where the water was really required, he declared that there was none. Another "inspired person" was then called in, and was in a few feet of the place pointed out by the English expert, the new comers' wand began to vibrate. At that spot water was discovered in abundance within a few feet of the surface; but, so far as could be ascertained by repeated borings, the second field was absolutely sterile. Out of the 122 cases investigated by Prof. Barrett, 140 were found to be successful, and there were only twelve failures.

Is It Electricity?

In searching for water the dowser walks over the ground carrying a forked rod of hazel, hawthorn, willow or metal. He grasps an end of the fork in each hand, and the apex points forward. When the finder stands over a spring, the rod is observed to move with more or less violence. The work is said to produce a marked degree of nervous fatigue in the operator. Mr. Henry Chesterman, a professional water-finder of twenty years standing, stated not very long ago that in walking over ground where there is running water, with a forked twig or wire in his hands, he feels a distinct vibration in both arms. A twinge ascends with lightning rapidity, and seems to centre in the heart. He finds that according as the volume of water is greater or smaller so is the intensity of the sensation. It is also possible, he asserted, to measure the physical disturbance, water at the source is not without influence. Mr. Chesterman has made many exhaustive and interesting experiments with the view of ascertaining if the shock is produced by electricity, and has arrived at the conclusion that the subtle force is really responsible for the physical disturbance. Mr. John Sikes, who has had thirty years' experience of divining water in many lands, has placed on record that on first taking up the profession he suffered much bodily pain and discomfort. When he came upon water with his rods in his hands he felt as if a strong electric current was coursing through every vein in his person. Gradually, however, he got used to the trouble.

Attempts at Explanation.

Time was, and it is not very remote, when the dowser was popularly believed to derive his exceptional powers from sources which were weird and uncanny. Ignorant and unlettered people are ever ready to ascribe to supernatural agencies any phenomenon, the cause and origin of which they cannot understand.

We have read of some French scientists who denounced the work as a fraud, because they had proved to their own entire satisfaction that electricity was not in any degree responsible for the motion of the twigs. "The art of finding fountains with succulent twigs," was declared by an American divine, who lived about one hundred years ago, to be "a cheat upon those who practice it, and offence to reason and common sense, an art abhorrent to the laws of nature, and deserving of universal reprobation." The ground upon which he based his wholesale condemnation was the fact that, having tried a blind boy with the mystic vibrations occurred in wrong places.

Mr. George Drinkwater, of the Isle of Man, tells of a niece and a son of his who find water with a twig. In the case of the son his father has tested him over drains, known to the older man but not to the younger; and the latter has often helped to discover drains the exact position of which has been unknown to either, but subsequently verified. A beech twig is generally used because it grows hardy, but a wire, he says, will serve as well. "The degree of force exerted varies considerably, and at times, in resisting it, the twig is strained almost to breaking point." Mr. Drinkwater adds that neither he nor his son has ever seen a professional water-finder at work, and that he himself does not believe it is an "art" or magic, but simply a power acting through some unknown agency—possibly electrical—and confined to a very few individuals.

A Summons at Chelvey, Eng., for having used insulting language a woman said that she had been knocked down, and that when she got up she did use language, "because it was the only thing she had to protect herself with."

FOREIGN LEGION OF FRANCE STRANGE LOT

Body Recruited From Every Land to Fight in Far Corners of Earth.

Fighting for France, some in North Africa and some in Tonquin, there is a body of men recruited from nearly every European country; they have no Fatherland, and that word upon their flag is replaced by another, which becomes to them as sacred—"Valour." "On their standard not 'Patrie,' but 'Valour,' is inscribed. A veil of impenetrable mystery hangs over the past of practically every one of these legionnaires, targeteers which go as deep as the well-springs of human passion are there, and sordid tawdry little human frailties likewise. There are men whose blood is that of royal houses, and there are the lowest of the low—they serve side by side for scanty pay gained for terrifically hard work. One link knits together every rank, and that is physical bravery and endurance. There is no attempt to mitigate the severity of the life, and one result of the strict regulations as to recruiting is that none but men of the highest physical value can enter the "Legion Etrangere."

The full complement of the twelve thousand who form the three regiments contains representatives of most European countries, and, by the law of May, 1881, when the Foreign Legion was founded, no service can be demanded from these men in Europe itself. Hence the Legion is seeing service against the Moors at the present time, it was used in the conquest of Madagascar, and the French possessions in the southeast of Asia claimed certain corps also. A recent return showed the following figures: 2,600 Alapians on Lorraine, 2,500 Germans, 1,800 Frenchmen, of whom 90 chose to enrol as foreigners, 1,700 Belgians, 1,000 Swiss, 350 Austrians, 80 Spaniards, 50 Englishmen, 50 Turks. A note attached to the number of Englishmen tells that three of them took out papers of naturalization, and these three are characterized as "really extraordinary persons."

The foregoing figures regarding the men who enter the Legion from Alsace and Lorraine are easily intelligible. A distinguished authority says that many Germans take service, because they are tired of ill-treatment in their home ranks, and many, he says, simply state that "I am here because I did not wish to serve Germany." And of the rest, who can say? Some, hardly more than youths, come attracted by the glamour of romantic possibilities; many because the thoughts of a broken past bite too deep. Not a few are non-committal French officers, smarting under real or fancied wrongs, and content to begin again from the ranks. But how can one explain the case of a cultured and learned professor of Oriental literature content to become a mere number among thousands? Or of another whose career had been that of inventor, explorer, ruler of an African tribe, deserter from the regulars? To such a collection of men one may well apply Kipling's phrase, "the Legion of the Lost Ones."

"We are a furnace in which Blackguards are burnt into Dero Devils and turned out as Heroes. A fine manufacture at which France has no equal." English readers may remember that Ouida has laid many of the scenes of one of her novels among the men of the "Legion Etrangere." She makes some of her characters to explain the causes of their enlistment—"women," "cards," "absinthe," "a comedy that was hissed," "dice," "the natural desire of humanity to kill and get killed," say they.

But whatever is the reasons, this essential fact remains that the legionnaires are invariably men who prove that, be their moral natures never so debased, they are capable, almost without exception, of looking death in the face over and over again. Nor is it alone in the stress of battle that they rise supreme. In the less romantic employ of outpost duty, in tiny detachments in the desert, records of splendid individual heroism have been written to the credit of the legionnaires. The legionary is an outlaw who has leaped over the barriers of society—within the ring-fence of respectability he is ill at ease. He lives in a glimmer of unreality, and if one asks the cause of the wild outbreaks, which occasionally come upon him, the inevitable reply is "le cafard." "Le cafard" may be compared to an imaginary insect, which crawls in and out of the interstices of the brain, and ticks and goads to madness. The unbearable load of recollections of the past and, above all, inaction, bring about these wild outbreaks. Is it to be wondered at that the exile flies to drink? The percentage of the men of the Legion who are drunkards is frequently very high indeed. Drink, inaction, and "le cafard," these are the curses of the legionary's life.

It should be stated that certain of the most incorrigible men in the regiments serving in France are drafted into special sections of the Legion in Africa; it seems very doubtful if this is altogether a wise course of action. In times when there is no active service in progress, the troops are put on to such sorts of work as fortress construction, roadmaking, and so forth. It is then that the legionary has many weary hours to undergo of unromantic work under a burning sun and on the verge of starvation of food and water. He is lucky if he is under a corporal who treats his men decently, for some of the sub-officers are perfect brutes.

Outpost work is another thankless task, for there the little band of men form a target for the rifles of hostile Moors or bandits, and even after weary days and much marching, the night hours are rendered dangerous by snipers. Every now and then hostile bands cut off an outpost from the relief body, and then, as often as not, the legionnaires perish to a man. But even should one or two survive they are put on the strictest trial to explain if it were possible for them to have saved any of the dead, or to see if they have remained alive at the expense of the others. Under no circumstances may a comrade be left in distress; hence men who survive have sometimes long terms of imprisonment because they cannot prove that everything was done for the lost companions.

Discipline is very severe, and there is no doubt that there are not infrequently cases in which tyrannical officers treat their men most cruelly. Some time ago, several shocking cases were brought to light showing that privates have been egged on to commit crimes whereby certain sub-officers benefited in having to take charge of prisoners to convey them from far-off posts for trial in towns.

REJECT ALL REMEDIES.

Cancer Research Specialists Disprove Many Theories.

The seven years' work of the Imperial cancer research fund was reviewed at the annual meeting over which the Prince of Wales presided. This organization was formed to be the head of the world's campaign against one of the most appalling physical evils with which humanity contends. Their work is now being carried on with the discouraging result that everything has been disproved and rejected. Trypelin is the last to go, the most elaborate experiments yielding absolutely negative results.

Despite the unbroken record of failure, the investigators are pursuing a line of inquiry which leads them to speak hopefully of final success. Now that the work of elimination has been completed they are devoting their efforts almost exclusively to experiments upon mice, which are extremely susceptible to cancer. Their short lives and great fecundity enable tests to be made in a few months, which in human beings require centuries.

The Different Sources From Which The Times Obtains Its Splendid News Service Are as Follows:

EUROPEAN SERVICE

THE EUROPEAN MANAGER of the United Press is Mr. Chas. Stewart, one of the best known of news gatherers in the world. While he is located at London, he keeps an alert eye on all European points, and he has that swift intuition, that "nose for news," which means "scoops."

Early in the spring the president of the United Press received the following dispatch from Stewart: "Gone to Constantinople." No explanation was given, but subsequent events showed that Stewart had anticipated the cataclysm there, had hurried to the scene, organized his news syndicate, with reporters all through the affected districts, and had installed an experienced Turkish newspaper man as staff correspondent. Stewart was back in London before the crash came, but so perfect was his organization and so accurately had he anticipated the movement of events there that the United Press hopelessly distanced all competitors, and gave its papers the news of the deposition of the Sultan, Abdul Hamid, and the name of his successor while papers served by more ancient systems were telling of the retention of Abdul as a constitutional sovereign.

This is but a sample of the prompt and efficient way in which the news of the Old World is handled

CANADIAN EVENTS

Dominion News, Covered by Special Correspondents of "The Times"

CANADA IS RAPIDLY coming into its own, not only as to natural wealth and growth but as a source of important happenings. To specially provide for this the Times has its own representatives in Ottawa and Winnipeg, who compile for this paper the news of the east and the Canadian middle west, respectively. Many events in these districts which in a general way are of minor importance are of special interest to residents of Victoria because of the number of easterners and plains people who have settled on Vancouver Island. This service is being steadily expanded and assures Times readers of the news, not only of the world at large, but the particular news of their own land.

In this way it rounds out the splendid service which the Times is giving its readers.

COAST AND AMERICAN NEWS

THE LEASED WIRE which runs into the Times office has its northern extremity in Vancouver, and its southern terminus in San Diego. It runs northward from the latter point through the cities of San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Bellingham. By this means, and owing to the fact that every paper taking the United Press service is a co-operative member of the organization and furnishes to the association the news of its own district, an almost instant report on all important news on the coast is obtained without having to filter out by the circuitous and slow methods which prevail unless up-to-date is used.

Eastward from San Francisco and Portland the other leased wires of the United Press connect the coast line with all the important eastern and middle west centres and by cable with the European office in London. A perfect news dragnet is spread in which not only ALL the news is obtained, but its delivery while it is still NEWS is assured.

A GREAT COAST TELEGRAPH SERVICE

FROM CALIFORNIA
TO ALASKA

People like to hear, first, about themselves, and then about their sisters, their cousins and their aunts. This is the basic principle of news. A big gooseberry in your neighbor's garden is of more importance as a news item than a new volcano in Japan.

—Sir Edwin Arnold.

TO ALASKA

If Sir Edwin Arnold was right, the news of the Coast, from California to Alaska, is of more vital interest to the people of Vancouver Island than important happenings in Georgia or in New Jersey.

The Times' leased wire, next to its efficiency and promptness in handling world events, is principally noteworthy for its ample Coast service. In this it has no peer. Thousands of words daily are delivered to this paper relating to Coast happenings.

Coast residents, therefore, can get the news of the Coast satisfactorily only by reading The Times.

This full and up-to-date compendium of news appears every night in The Times. It costs the reader no more than a paper with a weak service.

RIOTING AT STEEL WORKS.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 27.—For the first time in ten days' rioting broke out at the plant of the Pressed Steel Car Com- pany at McKee's Rocks yesterday when the striking employees of that concern were fired upon, it is alleged, by deputy sheriffs. No one was in- jured. The authorities on account of to-day's outbreaks have taken on ex- tra sentries and last night the plant was surrounded by armed guards for the first time in over a week.

REJECTED LOVER'S ACT.
Montreal, July 27.—Because the girl with whom he was in love spurned his offer of marriage, John Smith, or Schmidt, shot Marie Monet at the lat- ter's home in St. Henri, a Montreal suburb, last night and turning the pis- tol on himself, blew out his brains. The girl was removed to the hospital, but is not expected to recover.

loan transactions which had to be carried through this year it was thought well to be able to show capitalists that we were able to retrench when it was necessary, and so the House cut down the public works estimates very materially. He had to express his gratitude to the Liberal members who consented to this, an act which placed them in an unpleasant position with their constituents, but elevated them to the highest possible plane of patriotism by showing that they were willing to subordinate local interests when it became necessary in the interests of the country as a whole. Victoria had suffered as well as other places. If the department had had money it would have been possible to have had a more modern drilling plant at work in the harbor here, but while this work had to be postponed he was happy to be able to inform Victoria that he was looking forward to being able to redeem in the near future the promise he had given parliament by going on with the works which had had been postponed. He continued:

"As far as your city is concerned, while we have been delayed in getting a modern drilling plant, still the work has gone on. The representative of your province in the government extension, and as a result of that we should make a sufficient appropriation to keep the two dredges engaged all the year. At the instance of the government the House gave this appropriation and the work of improving your harbor has gone on and will go on until we get it to the condition it should be in. We have planned to make it. (Cheers.)

Improvement of Harbor.
"I assure you I am as alive as anyone can be to the necessity of improving this port to any reasonable extent, and as a result of that the people of Victoria have to make will have my warmest sympathy and consideration. You occupy a magnificent position at the foot of this splendid island, a province in itself, with mineral resources exceeding valuable, timber areas the finest and fisheries all along the coast, and most of the position of a great city. And just across is another port, Victoria, just the same though sometimes called Esquimaux, where you have one of the most magnificent harbors in the world. Our government is represented at this moment at the heart of the Empire, conferring with the imperial authorities as to the best way of doing to resist for all time in maintaining inviolate the supremacy of the British flag. We have felt that Canada must do her part (cheers), and we believe that any reasonable and proper efforts we put forward in that connection in conjunction with the imperial authorities will resolve the enthusiastic support of the people of Canada, and not least the hearty support of the loyal people of British Columbia. (Hear, hear.)

"I myself am in favor of this position, that whatever we do in that direction shall take the form of building up our own Canadian navy so our ships will be manned by our own people, and while primarily for the defence of our shores, that in the day of battle, when the strength of the Empire is tested, they shall rally to the old flag. Canadians are ready to spend their last dollar and the last drop of their blood in defence of that flag. (Cheers.)

"In carrying out this policy we must have a naval base on the Pacific, and, expressing my own personal view in doing which I believe it will be part of the policy adopted—I know of no better place on the Pacific for a dry-dock capable of accommodating the largest battleships than within a few miles of where we are assembled. (Hear, hear.) Esquimaux, with its magnificent harbor, its fortifications already constructed at the expense of hundreds of thousands of pounds by the imperial government, seems to me to present possibilities for the construction of a dry-dock and as a naval base not to be excelled on the Pacific or Atlantic.

"My friend, Mr. Templeman, has referred to the fact that this good city of Victoria thought proper to select another as its representative. I cannot think that in doing so they were acting on their deliberate judgment or expressing want of confidence either in Mr. Templeman or the government which, since 1896, has been so ably led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. I do not do so much for the development of this country. I think it must have been due to temporary causes, which will not operate when this government appeals to the country and to the people of Victoria. Is it possible that the people of a maritime city like this, situated here with the trade of the Pacific going through your port, would turn your backs on the government whose policy has developed the trade of the Dominion and brought about such a marvelously rapid growth of our foreign trade? Take the city of St. John. From a majority of over one thousand for the Conservative candidate in 1894, I was returned by the magnificent majority of nearly 500. Your interests here, as the most western port are the same as those of the great city of St. John. There must, then, have been, and we do know there were, other causes, temporary causes, and circumstances which, I think, must be regretted by the gentleman who was Mr. Templeman's opponent, influencing the people on that occasion. Since I came here I find the majority of the people are in harmony with the policy of the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and will next election support his candidate.

"You have in British Columbia every reason for confidence in the government which is behind those great national undertakings, the Transcontinental and the Canadian Northern. I am glad to see from a map that the G.T.P. has in contemplation the building of a line down through the centre of this beautiful island, making Victoria one of the termini on the Pacific. If the people of this great city and this magnificent island make up their minds that the railway shall be built in the not distant future, and Victoria become the southern terminus of it, I see no reason why you should not have your wishes carried out, and having them are reasonable, and it is within the reasonable resources of the country to make provision for that line of railway."

Dr. Pugsley again expressed his pleasure in his visit to Victoria and his regret that he cannot take time to go up to Prince Rupert, and sat down amid renewed cheers. Mr. B. Jackson, who has lately moved to Victoria from Manitoba, made a

RAIN DELAYS THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Games Postponed Yesterday to Be Commenced To-day.

The annual British Columbia tennis tournament being held this week under the auspices of the Victoria Tennis Club on the Belcher street courts was not commenced yesterday owing to rain.

A start is being made during to-day with the matches in the first round which were set for yesterday. The courts yesterday were too soft to play, and last night's rain did not improve them in this respect. The drawings for the first matches are: Bird vs. Hewitson; Miss Brydon and Miss Gillespie vs. Miss Harvey and Miss Holmes; Macne vs. Williams; Miss Baker and Miss Holey vs. Mrs. Sampson and Miss Pitts; Leeming vs. Hopper; Wilbur and partner vs. Darry and Miss Page. The next series of matches includes B. P. Schwengers, the British Columbia champion, who will play Cardinal in the gentlemen's singles. In the same series A. E. Howard makes his reappearance against Kirkbride. Miss Ryan, of California, is also one of the first in the ladies' singles to appear, being drawn against Mrs. Talbot.
